$7.6 Billion Asked For Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today to scrap more than 30 "Great Society" education programs and appropriate $7.6 billion in a revamped federal education program he said would give more flexibility and authority to local communities.

Breaking from tradition, Nixon sent an education message outlining the program to Congress before delivering his State of the Union message, the normal vehicle for outlining such plans.

He also disclosed for the first time the $7.6 billion, an increase of $2.5 billion over federal education spending in 1970.

"No matter the faith or family circumstance, each child should have equal access to a good education," Nixon said.

The program includes:

Requests for a supplemental appropriation of $2.85 billion for the current fiscal year which will be used for the school year beginning in September in order to provide prior funding and facilitate budget planning for school districts. This amount was not included in the $7.6 billion figure.

A phasing out of the "impact aid" program of federal assistance to school districts with large numbers of students from federal installations such as military posts.

A $1.3 billion program for providing grants to needy students for college and other post secondary educational needs. Currently the average grant is $260 and is limited to entering freshmen. Under the new proposal grants of up to $1,400 would be provided depending on need.

A new grant program designed to solve specific problems caused by school desegregation.

White House Memos Reveal Big Milk Producers Campaign Pledge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three White House memos filed in connection with consumer advocate Ralph Nader's suit to roll back milk support prices revealed today that milk producers promised $90,000 a month to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Gordon C. Strachan, liaison between the reelection campaign and then-White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, reported to Haldeman in a Sept. 11, 1971, memo that the milk producers had contributed $232,500 by that time —only half of the commitment.

About six months earlier, Nixon met with dairy leaders and the administration increased the federal support price on raw milk to 85 per cent of parity.

Nader filed suit several months ago to roll back the increase on grounds it was politically influenced. The White House contended in a "white paper" earlier this month that it raised the support price for economic reasons and because the Democratic Congress had "put a gun to our heads" for an even larger increase.

The White House also said the milk co-operatives gave $437,-

Market Clerks To Vote Sunday On New Contract

Marin County supermarket clerks will meet Sunday to discuss and vote on the new contract hammered out Tuesday after lengthy negotiations, a spokesman for Retail Clerks Union Local 1119 said today.

If ratified by the local, the contract will be retroactive to Jan. 1. It contains the same cost-of-living pay increases the butchers union members won in December, as well as annual pay raises during its three-year term.

Journeymen clerks would get an immediate 30.5 cent raise, to $5.565 an hour, rising to $6.25 an hour in 1976.

A spokesman for the Food Employers Council, which negotiated the contract for markets in eight Bay Area counties, said the raise averages 18.7 per cent over the three years. Portions of the contract in excess of the federal wage board guideline of 5.5 per cent increase a year will be submitted to the federal inflation watchdogs for ratification. Both employers and union will urge its approval, the spokesman said.

Each local of the clerks union will act separately on ratifying the contract. Should any local reject it, that unit will have to negotiate on its own with the employers involved; the pact still will become binding in any county where it is ratified, the food employers' spokesman said.

Under the tentative contract, maximum pension benefits will increase immediately by $125, to $550 a month, and retirement age for full benefits is lowered from 65 to 60 years.

Union negotiators, in winning gains similar to the butchers, accepted proposals from employers that sub-journeymen hired after Feb. 1 won't receive raises until 1975. A new category of clerks will be established for non-food sections of the markets, starting at $4 an hour.

The tentative contract sets up arbitration procedures for any disputes over introduction of automation at the checkout stands.

Oil Price Rollback Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., called today for rolling back crude oil prices and then holding them to ceilings tied to actual cost increases.

He said his proposal would apply the rollback-freeze to all petroleum products, which would cover gasoline and heating oil among other products.

In prepared Senate remarks accompanying introduction of a bill, Jackson said oil companies were getting much more for their domestic production than the price they claimed they needed a year ago.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee which questioned executives of the top seven oil companies for three days this week, said the industry giants conceded prices were too high.

Jackson said the administration appeared to be concerned that the way to eliminate the fuel shortage is to increase prices — by taxes or otherwise — high enough to limit demand by pricing gasoline and fuel oil beyond the reach of many Americans.

Jackson's bill would permit the President to set ceiling prices that would allow only a pass-through of production, transportation and marketing cost increases actually incurred.

Exceptions would be allowed only if the President felt they would encourage new production and exploration. Any increases would have to be justified in detail, Jackson said.

Federal Energy Chief William E. Simon promptly opposed such a move. He said last year's price freezes on food — marked by such things as drowningof baby chicks because of low prices — showed that "an uneconomic price" is paid for such restraints.

Jackson and Simon appeared together in an interview on the CBS-TV Morning News program.

Simon for the second day in a row urged against hasty legislative remedies that might aggravate rather than improve the energy crisis by discouraging oil companies from searching for new oil sources in this country.

Jackson questioned today the effect of some of Nixon's proposals to hold down profiteering — such as the administration's brand of legislation to cope with windfall profits. "This is not adequate, frankly," he said.

Jackson said those dealing with the crisis should take the approach: "protect the consumer."

"I want them (oil companies) to make reasonable profits, but what's going on there is consumers are being gouged and the companies are making unreasonable profits...

"I would prefer to see some benefit to the 200-odd million Americans that are directly affected by, for example, gasoline by rolling back acd freezing the prices. This is where the major reform must come.

Jackson said the present "new oil" price of $10.35 a barrel was unreasonable.

"The industry itself — the seven largest companies — the seven sisters — they all agreed that $10.35 was an unreasonable price," he said.

"My point is, right now, we are dealing with an unconscionable price situation in which the companies are ... taking advantage of what the Khadafys have been doing."

Collier Won't Run Against Peter Behr

San Rafael's Senator Pleased At The News

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, today announced he will not run this year against Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, for Behr's newly redrawn district which includes most of Collier's former bailiwick.

Collier said last October he was considering moving to Marin County so he would be eligible to run against Behr.

"I am pleased and even a bit relieved. . . he would be, of course, a very formidable opponent," Behr said today after hearing the news.

Behr said if he wins his election in November, he will work closely with Collier to represent the North Coastal area Collier formerly served.

Collier's old first district was redrawn under the court-ordered, statewide reapportionment plan, stripping him of most of the Redwood Empire which he formerly represented, but leaving Siskiyou County as his home base. Behr's old district was redrawn to include Marin, most of Sonoma County — except Santa Rosa — as well as Mendocino, Del Norte, Humboldt and Lake counties. He lost Napa and Solano counties in the shuffle.

Behr is up for reelection this year; Collier's term in his present district expires in 1976. The 70-year-old dean of the Senate told newsmen today he definitely will run for reelection in the First District in 1976. As redrawn, it includes most of the former territory represented by Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr. of Redding, Senate Republican leader.

Marler has announced he hopes to be appointed as a judge, and won't seek reelection.

Collier said the decision not to change hometowns and run against Behr was made "by my family and me."

Had he challenged Behr and lost, he still could have sat in the Senate for his remaining two years as First District senator.

Harry Connick Will Enter District Attorney's Race

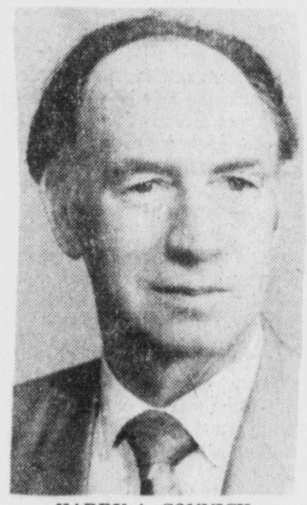

Harry A. Connick, partner in a San Rafael law firm, announced today that he will run for Marin County district attorney.

He served as a judge advocate in the Air Force from 1953 to 1969, and was stationed at Hamilton Air Force Base in 1957-58. He and his family returned to Marin when he retired after 20 years Air Force service during World War II and after 1953.

Connick attended the University of Oregon and was graduated from the University of Montana Law School in 1951. He is a partner in the Connick and Young law firm, handling both civil and criminal trials. He is a member of the Marin County Bar Association, the California Trial Lawyers Association and the Irate Taxpayers of Marin.

Connick also is active in scouting, as assistant commissioner for the Miwok District and committee chairman for Marin Mounted Explorers Post 355.

HARRY A. CONNICK
District attorney candidate

He said he wants to see changes in the district attorney's office that will eliminate time consuming delays in the counts.

"At present, a lot of complaints are filed by the district attorney's office without adequate investigation," he said. "They are taking up court time and are later denied, costing time, money, and embarrassment to the persons charged."

He said he believes deputies in the office need to be given more responsibility and freedom in deciding how to handle individual cases.

Connick, his wife and two sons live at 12 Ayala Court, San Rafael.

He said he intends to file as soon as filings open, Feb. 11.

Edward M. Krug, 31-year-old San Rafael resident and deputy district attorney in Sonoma County, is the other announced challenger for Bales's office.

Reclaimed Wastewater Irrigation Plan Wins Water Board Backing

By PAUL LIBERATORE

A plan to use reclaimed wastewater to irrigate the new McInnis Park in San Rafael, the Marin County Civic Center and six other areas was received enthusiastically yesterday by directors of the Marin Municipal Water District. (Other water district stories, page 8.)

Board members voted to enter formal discussions on the project with Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District and the county parks and recreation department.

Under the plan, being developed by sanitary district engineers, 567 acre feet of secondary treated water per year from the Las Gallinas treatment plant would be used to irrigate the park, civic center, Mount Olivet Cemetery, Terra Linda High School, Las Gallinas Golf Course, Quail Hill, Guide Dogs for the Blind and landscaping along Highway 101.

"The project would get people in Marin used to the idea of using reclaimed water rather than throwing it into the bay," said acting district Gen. Mgr. J. Dietrich Stroeh.

Director L. Martin Griffin called the proposal "a step in the right direction."

Stroeh said the water district might help plan, finance and administer distribution of the water to the irrigation sites.

Construction of the park, in the Smith Ranch area, will take three or four years. Work is scheduled to begin this fall. If the plan is deemed feasible, construction of distribution lines and other facilities could take place simultaneously, Stroeh said.

Director Jack R. Felson said wastewater reclamation "is a

Two Ask $1 Million For Rabies Exposure

A Forest Knolls horseman and his wife filed a $1 million damage suit today in connection with their exposure to rabies last spring. It was the second such suit in eight days.

In the Marin Superior Court action, Norman and Madeline R. Kreuter name the county, state and several individuals as responsible for their exposure to the almost always fatal disease.

Included as defendants are Mario and Eva Ghilotti, on whose Nicasio ranch the Kreuters were exposed to rabies; Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer; two Point Reyes Station veterinarians, John E. Zimmerman and Donald E. Hansen, and two state officials, Leland Bartlet and E. L. Tieken.

The suit claims the Ghilottis last May hired Kreuter, a ferrier or horseshoer, to shoe Co-Pilot, a prized Arabian stallion, and encouraged his wife to ride the horse.

A week later the horse became ill and was destroyed. Portions of his brain were sent both to a state veterinary laboratory in Petaluma and to the county health office.

Personnel at both labs "negligently and carelessly failed to ascertain that the cause of Co-Pilot's illness and death was rabies," the suit said.

The Ghilottis and the veterinarians are named because they "failed to inoculate the horse" against the disease, it added.

Besides $500,000 in damages for each of the Kreuters, the suit asks compensation for loss of income, $2,500 in medical bills and household and child care expenses incurred while

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hughes' Counsel Challenges Court

RENO (UPI) — Attorneys for billionaire Howard Hughes yesterday challenged the power of a U.S. District Court to force him out of hiding to answer charges of stock manipulation and conspiracy.

Hughes

With Hughes apparently living in the Bahamas but facing possible arrest and extradition if he fails to appear in court Friday, attorneys moved for dismissal of charges and challenged the court's jurisdiction in a case involving Hughes' purchase of Airwest Airlines.

They argued that proceedings must be halted until the court rules on the jurisdiction question.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Thompson was expected to rule on that motion and a motion to dismiss the case Friday, the day set for Hughes' arraignment.

Hughes has been named in a nine-count indictment alleging a conspiracy to pressure directors of Airwest, now Hughes Airwest, into selling by forcing down the value of company stock.

Drop In Fighting

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government today reported a sharp drop in fighting over the Tet lunar new year although there was no official truce with the Viet Cong. It also said everything was quiet in the disputed Spratly islands claimed by China.

In neighboring Cambodia, the government of President Lon Nol marked the new year by sending warplanes in nearly 70 attacks against suspected Communist positions south of Phnom Penh in an attempt to break up a rebel drive to encircle the capital.

The heaviest ground fighting in Cambodia was reported at Kompong Kantout, seven miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

Gyroscope Faltering

HOUSTON (UPI) — Space officials look philosophically at the faltering gyroscope aboard Skylab much like a man with a worn out old car: he hopes it can get him to work just a few more times until he can find something new.

The 100-ton lab's vital stabilization device, one of only two working ones left, performed so poorly yesterday that otherwise cheerful engineers admitted they think it's slowly going through its death throes.

Skylab 3 pilors Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gison and William R. Pogue would be in no danger if the gyro quit working, nor would they necessarily have to come home earlier than the planned Feb. 8 splashdown, but their research work would be sharply curtailed.

Admits Kickbacks

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A one-time aide and close associate of Spiro T. Agnew testified yesterday that the former vice president was directly involved in a kickback scheme with engineering firms.

"It was a clearcut kickback arrangement we had with Agnew," Jerome Wolff said under oath. "The payments were in return for state work."

Assessor Indicted

REDDING (UPI) — Shasta County Assessor Robert O. McMillen was served yesterday with grand jury accusations of willful and corrupt misconduct in office.

McMillen, county assessor since 1960, was recovering from nose surgery at his Anderson home and was not available for comment.

The grand jury handed down an accusation Tuesday night charging McMillen with nine counts of misrepresenting and falsifying documents involving his personal home and businesses and county expense accounts.

Truckers Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A coalition of truck drivers' groups voted early today to shut down their rigs Jan. 31 in protest of government fuel policies.

The result of the voting was announced by Mike Parkhurst, editor of Overdrive Magazine.

He said the 18 representatives of truckers' organizations were nearly unanimous in voting for the work stoppage after a day-long meeting at a downtown Washington hotel.

Faith In Voters

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Gov. Edwin Edwards says recent news stories about his sporadic Nevada gambling trips will not change his luck with the voters.

"I trust the judgment of the public and I think they trust me," Edwards told a news conference yesterday.

"I gamble for fun because I like it. If I get a chance to go back to Las Vegas where gambling is legal and I feel like I might win. . . I might gamble."

IRS Air Raid

BELFAST (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army today carried out its first air raid in more than four years of strife in Northern Ireland, but two milk can bombs dropped from a hijacked helicopter failed to explode.

A police spkesman said the IRA tried to bomb a police station at Strabane, 13 miles south of Londonderry, but there were no explosions and army bomb disposal experts rushed in to defuse the milk cans.

Scott Not Talking About Nixon Papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "I'm not going to say what I saw," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott after a visit to the White House.

But he said yesterday he saw enough documentation to convince him that at least one witness lied and that President Nixon is innocent of several Watergate charges.

Scott referred to former presidential counsel John W. Dean III, who testified last summer before Sen. Sam J. Ervin's Watergate committee.

Dean, in pleading guilty to one count of obstructing justice in exchange for a guarantee no other charges would be lodged against him, said under oath he believed Nixon knew of the coverup of the break-in and bugging of Democratic Party national headquarters in Washington in 1972.

Scott said the White House material he saw was sufficient to warrant "several indictments" against Dean.

"I saw enough to convince me the person involved (Dean), who gave testimony before the Ervin committee, testified to matters that had not occurred at the dates and times he said they occurred," the Pennsylvanian senator said.

Asked what he examined that convinced him, Scott said:

"I'm not going to say what I saw." But of Dean, he said: "I would feel there is enough evidence to indict him...several indictments."

Subpoena Power Shared On Impeachment Data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. has changed his mind and agreed to share subpoena powers with committee Republicans, removing an immediate threat of a partisan squabble over impeachment of President Nixon.

The question of subpoena powers and the impasse over committee access to facts gathered by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski were on the agenda for a meeting of the panel's senior members today.

Asked yesterday if he would continue to resist an effort to force him to share subpoena power with ranking committee Republican Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., Rodino said, "I certainly will not. We are going to do this in a bipartisan way."

The committee voted along party lines last October to give Rodino sole subpoena power and the chairman refused to let the GOP share authority to summon witnesses.

It was decided later, however, the committee did not have such authority and that it would have to send a resolution to the full House. Republicans promised a partisan fight again, but Rodino confirmed yesterday he would share the power.

Nixon Homes Spending Hit In Lawsuit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A suit was filed in U.S. District Court today charging President Nixon illegally and unconstitutionally used up to $3 million to improve his Key Biscayne and San Clemente retreats.

Reps. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., and Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, announced the filing of the suit, which asks Nixon to make restitution to the U.S. Treasury for the amount of money spent on the private homes in Florida and California.

The suit, which charges the President, the General Services Administration and the Secret Service with illegal use of federal funds, was filed because the home improvement spending was "illegal and unconstitutional and substantially added to the value of his private worth," Abzug said.

"We think the President should give back the money," she said, "and we also want him, the GSA and the Secret Service to be enjoined from spending any more money illegally."

Mrs. Abzug said she supports "legitimate" spending of money for security and communication purposes.

But she said no "justification" existed for spending on beach cabanas at San Clemente and the hiring of a full-time gardener for "routine landscaping functions unrelated to security" at Key Biscayne.

She also cited the purchase of Mexican-style lanterns for the Secret Service guard station gate at San Clemente, custom furniture for Mr. Nixon's den at the California retreat, and an ice-making machine for the Florida hideaway.

"Our lawsuit charges the President with illegally exceeding the law as written by Congress and violating Article II, section 1, of the Constitution," she said. That section bars the President from receiving additional emoluments outside his salary and expenses.

Foster Murder Warrant Sought

OAKLAND (UPI) — A second murder warrant, this one against a man already under arrest, will be sought in the slaying of Oakland's schools superintendent, Police Capt. John Lothrup said yesterday.

Without revealing what evidence police had, Lothrup said that Russell J. Little would be the second man charged with the assassination of superintendent Marcus Foster on an auto parking lot Nov. 6.

Joseph M. Remiro, who already has been charged with the shooting, and Little were both arrested in nearby Concord when their van was stopped by a traffic policeman and gunfire broke out.

Both are 27 and both are now in San Quentin Prison for security reasons. Both also have been charged with trying to kill a policeman.

In the van police found leaflets printed by the mysterious Symbionese Liberation Army, a group that claimed responsibility for Foster's death in letters to the news media.

Concord firemen were called to a blazing house at the time Remiro and Little were being arrested and found literature suggesting that it was the SLA's headquarters.

Nancy L. Perry, 26, who police say apparently set the fire to destroy the evidence, also is being sought, although the warrant for her arrest has no connection with the Foster killing.

In its letters to the news media, the SLA said Foster had been killed because he wanted police protection in the schools to reduce violence and vandalism.

Among the things in the blazing house that firemen recovered were hand-drawn map of the Richmond-San Rafael Bay Bridge and the Berkeley Post Office as well as lists of San Francisco East Bay businessmen and executives.

Police said a gun found on Remiro was the weapon that killed Foster.

Navy Eases Its Stance On Trident Submarines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has caved in after a tooth-and-nail fight last year to speed up the Trident nuclear missile submarine and will quietly offer Congress a stretched out schedule in the 1975 budget, spokesmen said late yesterday.

The new schedule, which runs six years, according to informed sources, meets two basic demands of the bloc that opposed the Navy speed-up program to get all 10 planned vessels under construction by 1977:

It reduces "concurrency," or the buying of parts for later submarines before the first one is built and tested to see that it works.

It saves about $250 million that the Navy got Congress to authorize last year, but which was later blocked in the appropriations process.

The decision represents a major defeat for Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who led the fight to include the money on grounds U.S. nuclear forces would fall behind Russia's in the late 1970s and early 1980s unless the hurry-up was approved.

It was a victory for Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H.

PEACE MOVES — Israeli and Egyptian military commanders went back to Kilometer 101 today to work out final details of troop withdrawals while Israeli forces went ahead with their pullback from the first Egyptian sector to be evacuated — the area around encircled Suez City at the southern end of the 102-mile long Suez Canal (1). It was estimated all Israeli men and equipment would be out of the area by Sunday, giving up their hold on the Cairo-Suez highway and moving 30 miles north to the canal city of Fayid (2).

A Call For Shutdown Of Coal Mines

LONDON (UPI) — Coal miners leaders called today for a national coal shutdown in Britain, a move that could turn economic chaos into disaster.

They decided to hold a strike ballot of the country's 269,000 miners and to recommend a vote in favor of a walkout.

A union spokesman said the decision was reached at a meeting of the full executive board of the National Union of Mineworkers.

The strike decision was taken despite a last minute "think again" appeal by Prime Minister Edward Heath who asked them to put their country first.

Mineworkers president Joe Gormley said, however, he and other miners' leaders would be willing to meet Heath "if he is prepared to indicate a bigger cash offer would be put before us."

Dorm Fire In Belgium Kills 23

HEUSDEN, Belgium (UPI) — A flash fire swept through part of a dormitory at a Roman Catholic boys school last night and police said 23 students were killed. A fire department official said today the emergency exits were "absolutely inadequate."

The fire caught 63 boys aged 12 to 15 in bed inside the dormitory at Sacred Heart Boys school, police said, but 40 escaped, two of them with second-or third-degree burns. They were listed in serious condition.

The blaze broke out at 11 p.m. and created smoke so thick that most of the victims were overcome while trying to escape. Their bodies were later burned beyong recognition. Parents were called in to help with the identification, much of it done by bracelets or jewelry on the victims in the school chapel.

Firemen said the smoke was so thick they could not enter the building.

"To me, the emergency exit possibilities were absolutely inadequate," Lt. Joseph Daniels, a fire department commander, said. "There was only one door that really served as an exit and entrance at the same time.

Daniles said the Franciscan fathers who run the 300-student school had apparently never staged fire drills.

"Of course, there had been talk of the need for fire drills," said one of the priests, the Rev. Filibert Coenen, "But none were staged that I know of. After the catastrophe, it is very regrettable. But it is like with sin—contrition comes afterwards."

Once firemen finally got inside, the blaze was kept from spreading to other parts of the building. Little damage was done to the brick structure itself but the wooden interior, a maze of plywood and fibreboard, was ravaged.

The Rev. Albert Lerno said the smoke was so thick it was "overpowering."

Pressure Planned On Syrians To Attend Geneva Conference

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told Arab and African ambassadors in Moscow today that Russia and Egypt will seek to bring Syria and Palestine into the Middle East peace conference at Geneva. There were reports yesterday that direct IsraeliSyrian talks might start soon.

Israel announced that the first Israeli combat troops began pulling back across the Suez Canal today from Egypt despite two snags which developed with Egypt in their disengagement accord. Equipment and tanks began returning yesterday and Israel began the tedious and dangerous task of digging up nearly a million land mines.

Egyptian sources in Moscow said Gromyko met with the ambassadors at Moscow's Vnukovo airport as he was seeing off Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi after a four-day visit. The sources quoted Gromyko as saying: "The Soviet Union and Egypt agree to the principle of Syria and the Palestinians joining the Geneva conference."

Syria until now has refused to take part in the conference and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) has not said flatly whether it would agree to participate. Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat was reported back in Cairo today for more talks with Egyptian leaders after visits to other Arab capitals.

Both Israel and Jordan, for different reasons, have raised objections to Palestinian participation in the Geneva talks. Two Israeli newspapers, Ha'aretz and Davar, reported today there had been recent high level Israeli-Jordanian direct talks, presumably on the Palestinian situation as well as on disengagement of their forces.

UPI Correspondent Richard C. Gross reported from Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road that the pullback of combat troops was announced as Israeli and Egyptian chiefs of staff met in the desert today to resolve the two remaining snags.

Their meeting in a United Nations tent on the Cairo-Suez highway was punctuated several times by telephoned consultations with their respective commands.

The newspaper Ma'ariv and the national radio said the first Israeli troops posted in the southern sector of the 560 square mile bridgehead on the west bank pulled out from the outskirts of the town of Suez, and the ports of Adabiyeh and Attaka yesterday.

The National Radio said six wounded Egyptian soldiers captured after the Oct. 24 Middle East cease-fire were flown from a suburban Tel Aviv hospital to the west bank and handed over across the cease-fire line. Two of the Egyptians were badly wounded, the radio said.

Ma'ariv said one of the two technical points under discussion by Elazar and Gamassy regarded procedures for Israeli vehicular traffic in the direction of the canal. Another involved the final details of the thinning out of Egyptian forces east of the canal in Sinai.

Disabled Nuclear Plant Put Back In Operation

SAN ONOFRE (UPI) — The San Onofre nuclear power plant was back in operation today after a 13-week shutdown caused by broken turbine blades.

The plant began generating full power again yesterday after 300 blades were replaced on a steam generator at a cost of more than $250,000.

The Southern California Edison Co. also had to burn more than one million more barrels of oil at conventional plants to make up the power loss, official said.

The 430 megawatt plant was closed Oct. 21 after some weakened blades flew off, an Edison supervisor said.

The problem occurred on the "non-nuclear side of the plant," said Earl Bresnahan, general superintendent of the power supply department.

Safety of the nuclear reactor was not threatened by the mishap, he said.

Bresnahan said three of Edison's conventional powered plants were shut down for the same reason during the 13 weeks the nuclear facility was being repaired.

Turbine blade failure is not an uncommon problem, he said.

Montreal Subway Closed By Fire

MONTREAL (UPI) — Transit officials today said Montreal's major north-south subway line would be closed at least a week while workmen remove the burned-out hulk of a train and 600 feet of track destroyed during a rush hour fire yesterday.

There were no serious injuries in the early morning blaze, but police reported 10 Metro employees and firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

About 650 passengers aboard the $1 million train were taken out through a tunnel when several tires caught fire and exploded, sending up dense clouds of acrid smoke.

THE CREWCUT YEARS

The long and the short of it is revealed by Doug Kenney as his hair goes from the long-haired look of today to the crew cut of yesteryear at the Columbia Preparatory School in New York. Kenney, a founder of the National Lampoon magazine, joined some 40 high school seniors yesterday who had their 1974 locks shorn to the shorter lengths of 1963 so they can pose as the senior class in the magazine's parody of a 1963-64 high school year book. Kenney will portray the class teacher.

000 to the campaign, although it acknowledged the industry had indicated it tried to raise $2 million.

"Lee Nunn reports that $232,500 has been realized. This is slightly more than one-half of the amount that should have been delivered on the commitment, $90,000 per month . . .

"It is Nunn and Sloan's opinion that Colson has established a separate agreemeet with the milk people in order to have cash available. I have not checked with Colson as this may be an agreement outside my area of responsibility.

"If the alleged Colson agreement has your approval the matter will be dropped. If it does not you may want to reemphasize your policy of single contact, Kalmback, with all contributors."

Nunn and Hugh W. Sloan were reelection aides.

A spokesman for Nader said the White House turned over the memos as "a representative sampling of the documents" involved in the suit.

The memos, all from Strachan to Haldeman, included:

A Sept. 16, 1971, memo saying that then-White House special counsel Charles W. Colson, a liaison with the dairy industry, had made a special arrangement to obtain $5,000 in cash from the milk producers.

It has been speculated that the $5,000 eventually was used to finance the 1971 break-in at the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

A Feb. 1, 1972, memo saying that Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's fund-raiser and personal lawyer, was "very concerned about his involvement in the milk producers situation" because of press disclosures linking Jack Gleason, a former White House aide, and the 1970 campaign funding.

The Sept. 11, 1971, memo about the $232,500. On it, Haldeman told Strachan to check Colson as to whether he "has established a separate agreement with the milk people in order to have cash available."

Driver Quotes Nixon On Speed

Mrs. Hodges was cited Nov. 18 for driving too slowly —57 miles per hour—in the fast lane of California 99, where the speed limit was then 70 mph.

She said she had just heard President Nixon's nationwide appeal to drivers to slow down voluntarily to save gasoline, although the present 55 mph limit was not yet in force. She argued, and the judge agreed, that she was just being a patriotic American, complying with the President's request.

Chicago Goes Back To Horse

CHICAGO (UPI) — The mounted police patrol was reintroduced in Chicago yesterday for the first time since 1947.

A 7-year-old chestnut gelding quarter-horse named Lurch switched his tail and tossed his head as the Chicago drum and bugle corps gave forth with "The Old Oaken Bucket" during a Civic Center Plaza ceremony.

"In 1947 we dismissed the horses as obsolete and unuseful," acting police Supt. James M. Rochford said, "and today we are returning to the mounted patrol with renewed enthusiasm."

Infant Is Injured As Truck Rolls

Six-month old John Noris Anderson III was hurt about 3 p.m. yesterday in a freak accident several miles west of Petaluma on Bodega Avenue near King Road.

The California Highway Patrol said the infant was riding with his parents, John N. Anderson, 24, and Linda M. Anderson, 20, of the Coast Guard Training Center at Two Rock.

The child reportedly dropped something on the floor and his father, who was driving, reached down to retrieve it. The southbound 1973 Datsun pickup truck left the road, rolled over several times and landed in a drainage ditch, officers said.

Development's Parking Plan Draws Criticism

Plans for parking and auto circulation for the proposed Whiskey Springs development in Sausalito drew criticism last night from members of the community appearances advisory board.

Board members agreed that two large parking lots appeared too massive and that the circulation pattern for cars was not clear and would lead to mass confusion, according to board secretary Sandra Babbino.

They also objected to sharp division of commercial and residential portions of the $6 million project, proposed for the old American Distillery Co. property at Bridgeway and Nevada Street.

Lecture Set On Van Gogh

"Van Gogh's Struggle With Alienation," which traces the sources of alienation in the life of artist Vincent van Gogh, will be presented Feb. 13 at 8 p.m. in the College of Marin's Olney Hall.

Lawrence A. Moorman, a Van Gogh authority and instructor of humanities on sabbatical leave from Yuba College, will speak and show slides.

Walter Zurcher Memorialized

A Walter Zurcher Memorial Fund has been established by the Marin Young Men's Christian Association as part of its Endowment Fund.

The fund will honor the San Rafael toy shop owner, who died recently. Zurcher was known for his many civic activities in San Rafael.

He was a founding board member of the YMCA and chairman of the board. He was active with the organization for many years, according to Fay Taylor, chairman of the board.

future way of reducing water consumption."

He pointed out that 159 acre feet per year of district water currently is used to irrigate the civic center grounds and the six other areas.

That water could be used for drinking and showers at the park if the reclamation system is built, Felson said.

Stroeh stressed that the plan is in its conceptual stage and that no cost figures have been discussed. He promised to report those figures to board members as soon as they are available.

Directors declined to contribute $2,000 towards a $40,000 study of water reclamation by consultants for the Southern Marin Subregional Sewerage Agency.

They agreed that the Las Gallinas project "is more concrete," and that information on water reclamation is currently available.

Florida May Seek Change In Daylight Time

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The deaths of five students in Florida during the preschool darkness imposed by Daylight Savings Time has prompted the state education commissioner to reconsider the possibility of switching back to standard time.

Two of the children were killed yesterday — Robert T. Allen, 13, who was struck by a car at 7:30 a.m. while walking to school at Casselberry, and Richard Toudt, 6, who was hit by a car near Tampa when he crossed a highway to board a school bus.

Richard's brother, Jeff, 12, and sister, Suellen, 7, underwent surgery for injuries suffered in the 8:06 a.m. accident.

In both cases the predawn visibility problem was compounded by heavy fog.

Nixon's Ideas On Celebration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon views the forthcoming bicentennial of the American Revolution as a moment to "look ahead" from the nation's present troubles, according to White House counsellor Ann Armstrong.

She told the National Press Club yesterday the celebration "should help Americans think in long-range terms...to not only look back 200 years but to look ahead 200 years."

Mrs. Armstrong, who has been designated to oversee the 200th anniversary of the birth of the nation beginning next year, did not mention Nixon's Watergate problems specifically. But she predicted he would use the occasion to redirect the country's motivation toward future progress.

Program Launched For Senior Citizens

The Mill Valley Library Association has organized a volunteer program, Operation Outreach, to provide senior citizens at the Redwoods Retirement Center with rides to the library on Friday mornings, according to Dorothy Killion, the association's publicity chairman.

The association also is collecting books for the first of four 1974 book sales, planned for March 16. Used books may be left in barrels available at the library.

Krogh Gets Six Months For Ellsberg Break-In WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell today sentenced Egil (Bud) Krogh, former head of the White House Plumbers, to a minumum of six months in jail for his part in the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Krogh, saying he was "deeply sorrowful" for his acts but now faced imprisonment with "a sense of peace, a sense of calm," was emotionless as he read a lengthy statement prior to his sentencing.

Krogh had pleaded guilty Nov. 30 to one count of violating the civil rights of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, the Beverly Hills, Calif., psychiatrist whose office was burglarized in an attempt to get information about Ellsberg's involvement in the Pentagon Papers case. Krogh had acknowledged authorizing the break-in.

The violation carried a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Gesell said he took into consideration Krogh's deep sense of remorse and the fact that his "wholly improper, illegal task was assigned...by higher authority." But he said the fact that Krogh was a lawyer, held high official respoonsibility, and had committed perjury made any punishment less than a jail term "inadequate."

He sentenced Krogh to a term of two years to six years in prison, but suspended all but six months of the term and ordered Krogh be placed on unsupervised probation for two years following his release. He gave Krogh 10 days to arrrange his personal affairs before surrendering to U.S. marshals.

Krogh, son of a former vice president of Marshall Field and Co. in Chicago, was a deputy presidential assistant for domestic affairs at the time of the Ellsberg break-in.

Ehrlichman and former White House aides David R. Young and G. Gordon Liddy are under indictment by the Los Angeles County grand jury in connection with the break-in. County charges against Krogh were dropped.

the Kreuters were away from home for inoculation against rabies.

The Ghilottis filed a $4 million suit Jan. 16 against the county and state and Dr. Zimmerman.

Because of the long incubation period for rabies, the Ghilottis and Kreuters may not know for six months whether they have contracted rabies.

The suit was filed by San Francisco attorneys Allan Brotcky and Ruth M. Friedman.

Jane Fonda To Seek Pledges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jane Fonda is still at war over Vietnam.

Miss Fonda, one of the most vocal antiwar figures while the United States was in the fighting, told a news conference Wednesday yesterday the United States is breaking the Paris peace pact by providing money to South Vietnam.

She said she would fly to Washington today to ask congressmen to take "the Indochina peace pledge," opposing all nonhumanitarian aid to the South Vietnamese and renouncing all U.S. intervention in affairs anywhere in Indochina.

Congressman Is Divorced

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Rep. William H. Hudnut, R-Ind., and his wife, Anne, were divorced yesterday in Marion County Superior Court.

The Hudnuts had been married 13 years. Mrs. Hudnut, who filed the suit, said the couple had been involved in numerous arguments for several years and that the arguments had increased in intensity in the past two to four years.

In addition to a property settlement, Hudnut will pay $25 a week in support for each of the couple's four children.

Alioto Ailing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has been ordered to bed "for several days" because a slight case of the flu developed into laryngitis, aides said yesterday.

Cotati Sets Rerouting Of Traffic

Traffic will be detoured around Cotati's hexagonal plaza Feb. 10 as a result of action last night by the city parks and recreation commission.

The rerouting will serve as a test of the city's long range plans to close the hub to traffic and thus make it safer for use as a park, according to secretary Carol Stansbury. (Traffic along the old Redwood Highway normally runs through the hub's center.)

The test will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Commissioners also asked Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to draw up plans for light fixtures in the plaza. Mrs. Stansbury said the plans will be done without cost, although the city council will be required to approve any outlays for actual installation.

"There are lights around the perimeter now," she said. "We're concerned with illuminating the inside of the park."

August Konrad was installed as chairman of the commission for 1974. Other officers are: Joseph Turner, vice chairman, and Mrs. Stansbury.

Special Veterans Course Offered

Upward Bound, a special educational program for veterans who haven't attended college, will be offered this spring by the Office of Veteran Affairs at Sonoma State College.

It will be presented from March 1 to June 7.

Director John Kent said the program gives no credits to those who participate. Rather, he said, it "seeks to prepare the student to enter college, apprenticeship programs or to seek employment."

Veterans who enroll will draw full GI Bill benefits without using their 36-month entitlement, Kent said.

French Oil Talks

BEIRUT (UPI) — French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert arrived in Jeddah today for an official visit and talks with Saudi Arabian government leaders on how to get more Arab oil for France, Riyadh radio said.

ENERGY

Moammar Khadafy, president of oil-rich Libya, origin of much of the imported U. S. oil prior to the Arab embargo. Since the embargo, Libya has sharply escalated oil prices.

"I would prefer to do something in that area instead of having Col. Khadafy set new and inflationary price levels for petroleum products in the United States." Jackson said his legislation not only would call for a rollback in current prices to prices he did not specify, but a freeze "at lower levels."

Simon responded: "I want reasonable prices, absolutely. But a rollback — didn't we learn in the food area last year — the drowning of baby chicks, etc. — what an uneconomic price that is for long run objectives of self-sufficiency in this country?

"We can keep oil and gas at reasonable levels in this country and still give the incentives for additional production and exploration to bring on the ability for self-sufficiency. And the alternative is to subject ourselves to the Khadafys of the world who charge us $10, $15 and $20 a barrel."

Simon declared: "I want to urge great caution before any punitive measures are put into place as a result of the emotional atmosphere that we have right now."

Jackson contended that the oil companies "have an unfair advantage" in the price-profits situation.

New financial reports yesterday showed that the biggest company, Exxon, recorded a profits increase of 59 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1973 over the last three months of 1972. It reported that earnings for the full year were also up a record 59 per cent.

A smaller firm, Union Oil, reported 1973 profits were 48 per cent above 1972. The industry contended that such comparisons are unfair because it said 1972 was an abnormally low year for oil profits.

Simon supported the industry view, saying a Treasury Department study nearing completion would show "the oil industry has been in the middle lane" of corporate profitability.

Jackson argued that getting energy prices to reasonable levels was essential to the western world.

"We're dealing not with just another crisis but the lifeblood of the western industrialized world," Jackson said. "...This is why the people are so concerned about pricing. If pricing goes through the roof here, we're going to destroy the industrialized economy of the western world.

Agnew's Book Idea Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is working on a novel about a vice president "programmed for disaster by the Chinese communists," the Washington Post reported today. But it said a representative of a major New York publishing house rejected the story.

Society columnist Maxine Cheshire said Agnew was in New York two weeks ago for a meeting with the representative of an unnamed publisher and brought with him an outline, one chapter and notes for the novel.

Cheshire quoted the publishing house as saying the novel was turned down "on its merits. The only reason to publish it would have been for its curiosity value."

Foot Transplant Success Is Told

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Chinese surgeon said Tuesday that doctors in Shanghai have been successful twice at "cross foot" transplants on accident victims who had a foot crushed but the leg unhurt while the other leg was crushed but not the foot.

Dr. Chen Chung-wei of the the Sixth Peoples Hospital said the good foot in each case was matched with the good leg and an artificial limb replaced the crushed leg.

Chen and three other doctors visited Franklin Hospital as part of their tour of the United States and Canada. Several American doctors toured China last year.

Karabian Won't Oppose Younger

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Assemblyman Walter Karabian declared himself out of the race for attorney general of California today but left open the possibility that he might run for secretary of state.

His announcement at a news conference came one day after incumbent Evelle J. Younger announced he would seek reelection, rather than run for the Republican nomination for governor.

Karabian, a Los Angeles Democrat, said some of his friends and supporters had been trying to get him to run for attorney general, arguing that because of Watergate scandals, the energy crisis and unemployment, Younger could be beaten.

Stations Found Overpricing Gas

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — About 43 per cent of the service stations in California violated federal price regulations last week, an Internal Revenue Service official says.

Ralph B. Short, acting IRS regional commissioner, told a U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing Tuesday that the most any station overcharged for gasoline was six cents a gallon. The stations "immediately rolled back when contacted by us," he added.

Refunds were made either by reducing prices or by giving away free gas, Short said.

Thousands of new BMW automobiles sit in a Munich factory lot awaiting buyers. 'Hamlets' Appear In General Plan

By BRYCE ANDERSON

Accompanying the "Preliminary General Plan Report" which was given the San Rafael City Council this week by consultants Duncan and Jones was a "technical appendix" almost as thick as the report itself.

It includes descriptions of San Rafael neighborhoods — styled "hamlets" by the consulting firm — which were in the initial general plan report. In the preliminary plan, they have been moved from the report itself to the appendix, where they appear behind geological data, lists of flora and fauna, and a discussion of ways to preserve open space.

The descriptions show residents of the various San Rafael neighborhoods how their "hamlets" appear to an outside planning expert — in this case, Warren W. Jones of Berkeley.

"Sun Valley Hamlet," says the appendix, "displays a good balance of housing values and population groups." But the consultant finds fault with the fact that higher-priced homes are on the hillsides and lower-priced ones down below. Triplexes and duplexes should be put on the hills, Jones says.

Downtown, Bret Harte and what the consultant calls "Wolfeback Slope" (Southern Heights and Wolfe Grade) are grouped together. The description notes that there is "a valuable supply of low-to-moderate cost units here," and says, "New development must carefully protect this supply." But it reports too much lower-cost housing in these "hamlets," and advises:

"The introduction of higher priced units should form the largest proportion of all new units, in order to provide an improved socio-economic balance."

No new development should be permitted in the East San Rafael "hamlet," says the consultant, "both for lack of services and the geologic and seismic hazards."

"Four hamlets on the San Pedro Peninsula, Country Club, Glenwood-Bayview, Loch Lomond-Uplands, and Peacock, together represent the wealthiest area in San Rafael," says the appendix. But, it continues, "this is an 'impacted' area" because it is almost exclusively high-priced single-family homes. "There is great need for different unit sizes and costs, to make this area available to low and moderate income families," it declares, then warns that "new development should not be allowed to alter the views or natural habitat."

"Santa Venetia is the largest hamlet in the San Rafael planning area," reports the consultant. "Santa Venetia is also one of the poorest areas in San Rafael, yet community sentiment would favor retention of open space, even purchased by the local neighborhood association . . .

"In order to provide a better socio-economic balance in Santa Venetia . . . while retaining some open space, a limited number of densely sited high cost family units should be constructed in hidden valley clusters off San Pedro Road."

Lower Terra Linda, Terra Linda, Lucas Valley and Marinwood are listed as "four hamlets" which "house an affluent, well-educated population of many San Francisco commuters and the largest proportion of children under 18 in San Rafael."

To save open space, says the description, new housing there should be low-income housing which would "conform to the pattern of present housing, in order not to produce a visually distinct 'ghetto.' "

Los Ranchitos is described as "a very mixed hamlet" which needs "some limited duplex and triplex infilling . . . to introduce moderate income units."

The appendix describes the "Lincoln Avenue Hamlet" (which includes Chula Vista) as "similar to Sun Valley," except that it needs higher cost units in the "eastern portion." It is suggested as "a convenient location for housing for the elderly."

Last "hamlets" listed are Dominican and what the consultant calls "Downtown North." Both, it says, "contain a fine mix of housing units sizes and values" and "should take very small shares of any growth that comes to San Rafael." It bemoans "the relative absence of families with minor children" and suggests playgrounds, fields and sidewalks should be provided to encourage such families to buy homes there.

Fatty Acids Discovered In Samples Of Meteorites

MOUNTAIN VIEW (UPI) — The Space Agency has found fatty acids, one of the buildings blocks of life, inside meteorites from outer space, it was announced yesterday.

Presence of the fatty acids provides more evidence that life might exist elsewhere than earth. It also supports the theory that life on earth resulted from a chemical reaction.

The fatty acids, discovered in 17 varieties, are similar to those used by plants and animals to produce more complex molecules commonly found in household staples such as milk, fruits and vinegar.

The avids, amounting to 200 micrograms per gram of material, were found in samples of the Murray meteorite which hit Kentucky in 1950 and the Murchison meteorite which struck Australia in 1969.

The analysis was done by Dr. Keith Kvenvolden of NASA's Ames Research Laboratory, Mountain View and Dr. George U. Yuen of the University of Arizona.

Previously, in the same meteorites, the researchers isolated amino acids, another building block of life. A living organic cell also contains nucleic acids and carbohydrates, substances which the scientists said they are now seeking.

One theory for the birth of life is that the building blocks were produced by exposure to energy from the sun of a primordial briew of methane, hydrogen, ammonia and water.

In laboratory experiments subjecting such a mix to energy, other scientists have manufactured complex molecules including amino and fatty acids.

The molecules found in the meteorites, both carbonaceous, have counterparts in biologically formed materials on earth, but they have never been found in non-organic sources such as rocks.

How extraterrestial rocks, or meteorites, could contain these materials remains a mystery.

Opening Of New School Is Delayed

Opening of the new La Fiesta Elementary School will probably be delayed until July 1975, the Cotati-Rohnert Park Board of Education was told Tuesday by its building committee.

Assistant Supt. Robert Plikuhn said recent heavy rains have made the ground too wet for excavation to begin as planned. He said he had hoped to have the school completed late in 1974. The facility will serve the newly-developed Holiday Park area of Cotati and Rohnert Park.

The board also hired Marianne Farris to teach fourth and fifth grades at the Thomas Page Elementary School. Plikuhn said the new teacher is a graduate of Novato High School and Sonoma State College. Her father is a Novato school principal.

Exorcism Tagged As A 'Cop-Out'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Anton La Vey, who calls himself "the high priest of the devil," said yesterday anybody can be possessed and getting exorcised is a cop-out.

"Anybody can be possessed, according to one's need to be possessed," La Vey said in an interview.

La Vey, who founded the "Church of Satan" here seven years ago and now claims 2.5 million members, said the Catholic church officials made a mistake when they became involved in a recent exorcism at suburban Daly City.

"I created the market for this whole thing," La Vey said. "The trouble is these guys have got into a big mess with the Church.

"We feel that a person's needs to be possessed are what motivates the individual. Anybody can be possessed. It's the way people act when they want attention. If they want to feel possessed and avoid the priest as a middle man, we will fix 'em up.

He said he does not feel possession by the devil is real.

"I am not a very mystical guy when it comes to my views on possession," said the satanic priest, who has conducted a wide variety of diabolical services at his 13-room establishment, where he kept a cave lion, stuffed werewolf, skulls and various other paraphernalia of his calling.

"We don't believe in it," he said. "We believe a man has to take the responsibility for his own actions. We take a positive approach. All exact science is considered the work of the devil."

But, he said, he is not displeased with the attention the Devil is getting as a result of the exorcism.

"It's a good thing. It gives us an opportunity to get into the act. It's more of a conversation opener than anything when Watergate gets dull," he said.

La Vey, who was a lion trainer, calliope player and magician before he became the "devil's advocate," said he is too busy these days to spend much time at his church here.

Goofs, Funnies Of Radio Will Return

Eight hours of flubs, goofs, and humor will be broadcast by a Bay Area radio station February 2. The program is the brainchild of Al Newman of Terra Linda, program director for Radio KSFO.

Newman's fondness for the unintended funnies that titillated listeners years ago — and for some of the bits that literally knocked transmitters off the air in the more conservative "golden days of radio" —is natural, he said. Newman's been a state and night club comedian most of his professional life since graduating from college in his native Ohio.

He calls his planned marathon program "Just for Laffs." Newman will cohost it with KSFO personality Ronnie Schell. Guest performers will include Jim Lange and Terry McGovern of Kentfield, Pete Scott and Gene Nelson of Sausalito, John Gilliliand of Mill Valley and Russ Syracuse of San Rafael.

About half of the show will be devoted to recordings that the original audiences never heard — or heard only as bleeps. They include funny tongue-tangles by commercial announcers, angry outbursts by big-time stars and underground humor not originally intended for mass listening.

The remainder of the program will include commercial comic records, interviews with personalities and jokes from listeners, Newman said. The show will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Four Are Honored For Contributions To Scouting

Silver Beaver Awards went to Dr. C. Ray Leininger of Greenbrae, Robert A. Joy of San Rafael and Edward V. Lathrop of Novato. A Silver Fawn Award was given to Mrs. LaVerne McVae of San Rafael.

Also honored at the annual recognition dinner held by the Marin Council, Boy Scouts of America, were William Timmer, Reuben W. Kaehler and Bernard J. Kerns, for their help in raising money for the council.

The William H. Spurgeon III Award for outstanding service to the exploring program went to Chief Joseph J. Brusatori and Scott Nelson of the San Rafael Police Department, sponsor of the first police science Explorer Post in the county, and to Jack H. Feller Jr., vice president of Exploring in Marin.

Also at the dinner, held Tuesday at Hamilton Air Force Base, Young American awards were presented to Theodore R. Mitchell, Laurie C. Packard, Donald W. Hiller and Anthony Trembley.

Cotati Acts On Averting Water Cuts

Cotati city councilmen have taken action which they hope will save the city from a water shortage before completion of the Russian River-Cotati intertie project in 1976.

City Mgr. Robert A. Switzer said the council on Tuesday allocated $15,000 to install a new pump in the city's existing well. The pump is expected to produce enough water to meet peak demands during the next two summers, Switzer said.

In a related move, the council instructed the city staff to draw up an ordinance increasing water fees to cover rising service costs.

Presently users pay less per gallon as their consumption increases, Switzer said.

The Cotati City Council also:

TRANSIT — Sent Sonoma County supervisors a letter endorsing Sonoma State College's request for campus bus service from the Golden Gate Transit District.

CLEANUP — Endorsed a spring cleanup campaign proposed by the city planning commission. No date has been set.

BUILDING — Requested supervisors to transfer to the city the Veterans Memorial Building, which Cotati wishes to use for community activities.

YARD — Asked supervisors to give the city a six-acre parcel of county land south of Cotati for use as a municipal service yard and truck parking area.

Watergate Panel Sets New Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dividing for the first time on party lines, the Senate Watergate Committee has decided to hold public hearings on President Nixon's campaign contributions from billionaire Howard Hughes and from dairy cooperatives.

The committee unanimously decided to ask again for a meeting with President Nixon to question him on the Watergate scandal. If he refuses, the committee said it may send him a written questionnaire.

It didn't say what would happen if he refused to answer that.

Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., emerged from a three-hour closed meeting yesterday to announce that members had voted to conduct the inquiries in two weeks of public hearings next Tuesday, its four Democrats voting in favor and the three Republicans against.

The deciding vote reportedly was a proxy cast on behalf of Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., who left midway through the meeting. One participant said Talmadge was unenthusiastic about continuing hearings, but left a proxy with Ervin to vote as he thought best.

According to committee sources, chief counsel Samuel Dash was "almost pleading" with senators to keep the hearings alive and promised to wrap them up in two weeks although other committee staffers said it couldn't be done.

"Dash would have done almost anything to keep the hearings going," said one source.

Dash has been saying publicly for weeks that hearings would resume and that investigators have uncovered very "significant" new information.

Participants at the meeting said Dash listed more than 30 prospective witnesses, but they said the list would have to be pared severely. They said the final witness list was certain to include Nixon's best friend, Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo, former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and at least two present or former Hughes aides.

Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., was among the committee members who felt their investigations had gone as far as they could go in a year's work.

As regards the campaign contributions by Hughes and milk groups, he said:

"I think these issues have been certainly explored in the media and so I couldn't see any real point in going forward with it."

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman, said he wanted the panel to end its work and turn over findings to the House Judiciary Committee, now studying the possiblity of impeaching Nixon.

"The matter compelling the attention of the American people at this time is impeachment," he said.

Ervin said the committee hearings would concentrate next week on a $100,000 donation in cash by Hughes to Nixon through Rebozo. Rebozo said he kept the money in a safe for two years, then returned it to the recluse billionaire.

The week after next, Ervin said, the committee will hold hearings on a $437,000 donation to Nixon's 1972 campaign and allegations it was tied to a 1971 hike in milk price supports, approved by the President.

Arab Terrorists Plead Guilty To Fatal Athens Airport Attack

ATHENS (UPI) — Two Arab guerrillas pleaded guilty today to the premeditated murder of five persons, including four Americans, in a bloody bullet and grenade attack at Athens airport.

"We recognize the events for which we are charged," the two Black September commandos said in pleading guilty for the Aug. 5, 1973 raid.

The two men face the death penalty. Their trial opened despite the guilty plea, because under Greek law such a plea does not automatically end the judicial proceedings.

Authorities tightened security across Greece to guard against any possible Arab guerrilla attacks during the trial.

Armed police closely guarded the downtown courtroom building and border guards made close checks on travelers after receiving reports guerrilla groups might try to enter Greece in a bid to free their comrades.

Shafik Al-Arid, 22, and Talal Khantourah, 21, members of the Black September guerrilla group, were charged with the Aug. 5, 1973, raid at an airport waiting lounge that killed five persons and wounded 55 others. They were manacled and chained as they were led into the courtroom today.

During the airport raid, the attackers took hostages and withstood a police seige for two hours from behind the bar in the Athens terminal transit lounge before surrendering.

"We did what we came here for," police quoted the guerrillas after their arrest. The two men said they trained for the attack in Libya, according to police.

Authorities quoted the two men as saying they wanted to kill passengers heading for Tel Aviv, but the travellers to Israel boarded their plane moments before the attack.

Arab commandos attempted to win release of the two men last month after killing 31 persons at Rome Airport and hijacking a plane to Athens, but Greece refused.

Among the victims of the airport raid were Jean Salantis, 23, of New York; Henry Leppo, 25, of New York; Albert Kerson, 53, of Union, N.J., and Lora Hack, 16, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Exorcist Priest To Talk No More

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Rev. Karl Patzelt, who performed exorcism rites for a family said to be plagued by demons, declared Tuesday he would not consent to any more interviews.

"In what I feel are the best interests of all concerned, I shall not consent to any more interviews or answer questions other than those posed by proper church authorities," he said in a news release.

Big Three Auto Sales Lag Badly

DETROIT (UPI) — A total of 155,004 passenger cars were sold by U.S. automakers in the second 10 days of the new year, a drop of 30.6 per cent from the same period in 1973 and the sharpest industry decline since mid-September.

Sales slumps were reported yesterday by the industry's largest three companies, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. But American Motors Corp., the smallest of the automakers, whose production is concentrated in the small-car range, reported sales for the Jan. 11-20 period hit a 14-year high.

The 10-day overall figures compared with a 27 per cent slump over the Jan. 1-10 period.

General Motors Corp., the giant of the industry, said sales during the second 10 days of the year totaled 70,640 passenger cars, a drop of 36.3 per cent compared to the same period last year, when 124,675 were sold.

Ford said its sales dipped 29 per cent during mid-January as it sold 48,628 cars, compared with 77,081 last year. Chrysler reported a drop of 37.5 per cent, with 25,728 cars sold during the 10-day period, compared with 41,134 for mid-January 1973.

The GM figures were a slight improvement over the whopping 42.5 per cent drop reported for the first 10 days of this year. Ford's percentage drop for that period was 14 per cent and Chrysler's was only 7 per cent.

AMC, which reported a 33 per cent jump in the Jan. 1-10 period, said 10,000 cars were sold in the mid-January period, compared with 8,323 during the same period a year ago.

Industry sources said the car sales situation apparently is stabilizing, although buyers are still seeking more small cars than the industry can immediately supply.

At the same time, sources said, the slump in big car sales felt most acutely just before the end of the year is "bottoming out."

Ford Foundation Cuts TV Grants

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Ford Foundation plans to end its annual $10 million grants to public television, it was learned yesterday.

The organization has given $150 to public broadcasting since 1951 and is the biggest nongovernment support for the media.

A foundation spokesman said he did not know how it would spend the money that had been given to public television.

"We have $40 million over the next four years to give away...there's been a lot of speculation, a lot of discussion, but the decision on to spend the money has not been finalized," said Stuart Sucherman of the Ford Foundation.

CHP Plans A Crackdown On Speed Limit Violators

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California Highway Patrolmen had orders today to stop all drivers breaking the state's new 55 mile per hour speed limit even if by only 1 m.p.h.

CHP Commissioner Walter Pudinski issued the tough crackdown to halt what he called a statewide trend of drivers "creeping up" over the energy crisis-spawned 55 m.p.h. limit.

"It's just the fact that now many individuals have lost their enthusiasm over responding to the 55 m.p.h. speed limit," Pudinski said. "Many of the individuals driving 55 m.p.h. 10 days ago are now driving 59, 60, and 61 m.p.h."

Although all speeders patrolmen observe will be stopped, Pudinski said, "it's conceivable the fringe violator—the person going 56, 57 or 58 m.p.h.—will not get a citation.

"It will be up to the judgment of the officer who makes the stop to evaluate the circumstances and decide whether to warn or cite the individual," hes aid.

But the CHP commander warned: "Any speeder traveling higher than those mild violations will receive a ticket."

The new speed limit law was signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan Dec. 12 and went into effect Jan. 1. It is aimed at easing fuel shortages by reducing total annual gasoline consumption in California by 300 million gallons, or 3 per cent.

Pudinski said that when the limit was 65 m.p.h. it was based on safety factors—not the fuel crisis.

In the past, he said his officers would have probably only warned the motorist violating the old 65 m.p.h. limit by only a few miles an hour by pulling up beside him—and not stopping him—when such a driver was not endangering himself or others.

"But since the 55 m.p.h. limit is directly designed for energy conservation, this will no longer be true," Pudinski said.

To determine if the crackdown is working, Pudinski said, the 100 local CHP commanders across the state will report daily to the Sacramento headquarters the number of speeding tickets issued.

And senior officers who drive their own cars or unmarked vehicles will serve as observers of highway and freeway speeding trends.

Trouble areas, Pudinski said, will receive "concentrated coverage."

Marlene Dietrich Has Leg Problem

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Marlene Dietrich is still troubled by a leg injury received when she fell off a stage during an East Coast concert tour four months ago, and has been hospitalized in Houston, a spokesman for the entertainer said yesterday.

He said a concert scheduled in Los Angeles next week was being postponed until April because of Miss Dietrich's condition. The leg injury never healed properly, he said.

Fuel Bills In Dixie District Dip

Supt. Clifford W. Campbell said last month's fuel bills were $2,100 less than bills for December, 1972.

Campbell said, however, that exact savings are unknown since last December had warmer weather than December of 1972.

The district has cut thermostat temperatures, unnecessary lighting and electric equipment use.

The board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in closed session to appoint principals.

Piece Of Queen Victoria's Cake Goes For $154

Lt. Col Keith Carey of the Australian High Commission paid the price —seven times more than had been expected — for a tiny box containing three rock-hard, fingernail sized brown pieces of the cake and a few crumbs.

A card attached to the box attested, under a black royal crown, that the chunks came from "The Queen's Bridal Cakes, Buckingham Palace, Feb. 10, 1840."

The relic was sold anonymously. Carey said he bought it for an Australian collector in Tasmania who did not want to be named.

Nixon Urged To Halt Wheat Import Quotas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Tariff Commission urged President Nixon today to suspend import quotas on wheat until June 30 in a move administration officials say will help safeguard against a bread shortage this spring.

White House spokesmen said Nixon was expected to announce his decision on the recommendation quickly, probably by tomorrow.

Top administration officials have been predicting Nixon will approve the proposal as a hedge against the possibility that other administration moves might fail to keep domestic wheat supplies adequate until an expected record 1974 wheat crop is harvested this summer.

The Tariff Commission said in a statement it had sent Nixon an interim report unanimously recommending that import quotas on both wheat and flour be suspended until June 30. The commission said this action can be taken without fear of hampering domestic milling of wheat products or the federal price support program for wheat.

Commission spokesmen said a final report on longer-term suspension or easing of wheat import quotas would be made later.

Under existing regulations, based on a law which restricts imports of crops which are eligible for U. S. price supports, wheat imports are limited to a token 800,000 bushels a year, mainly from Canada.

The baking industry predicted recently that bread might cost as much as $1 a loaf this spring unless the government stops wheat exports, but Nixon declared such reports "ridiculous" in a nationwide speech Saturday.

Department economists, in a revised forecast of supply and demand for major crops, also raised their estimates of 1974 wheat and corn production to record levels. Consequently, they said, reserve stocks of both grains will be rising after this year's harvests, with the prospect of greater supplies and potential relief from food inflation.

The latest forecast said that with exports approaching record levels in the current marketing season, reserve stocks of "old" wheat left on hand when the 1974 harvest arrives this summer are now expected to be down to 182 million bushels.

Bids Opened On Highway Landscaping

Watkin and Bortolussi Inc. of San Rafael, with a bid of $54,115, was the apparent low bidder for landscaping work on the San Rafael entrance to Highway 101, when five bids were opened yesterday by the State Department of Transportation.

Next-to-lowest bidder was Valley Landscape Co. of Stockton with a bid of $59,999, a spokesman for the department said. Highest bidder was Andre Landscaping and Maintenance of San Rafael with an $80,000 bid.

Contract for the job will be awarded about Feb. 14, he said.

Plans call for a city entrance sign, to be paid for the city of San Rafael, planting and irrigation systems, and a sidewalk and benches along Hetherton Street.

The City of San Rafael has contributed $18,000 toward the project. A total of $57,000 is available for the work, the spokesman said.

Bandits Hit Homes Near Mill Valley

Three armed robbers broke into two homes in the Panoramic Highway area near Mill Valley last night and forced residents at gunpoint to give up camera equipment and cash.

Sheriff's deputies said the three men first forced their way into the home of Mark Anderson, 25, and George Kollck, 24, at 442 Panoramic Highway shortly after 9 p.m. They hit Anderson in the face with a shotgun and took away camera equipment valued at $4,000.

About half an hour later, they broke into 50 Monte Simas Avenue and took $50 in cash from Scott Peters, 25, whom they also struck with a gun.

Sheriff's deputies said the men were armed with both shotguns and revolvers. One was wearing a nylon stocking over his head.

TRIBAL VOTES POSTED

Illinois Gets Large Part Of Fortune

VIENNA, Ill. (UPI) — An out-of-court settlement has given the state about $1.6 million from the "shoebox" fortune estimated at more than $3 million left by the late Illinois Secretary of State Paul Powell.

The settlement, reached by executors of Powell's estate and the office of Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott, was approved yesterday by Circuit Court Judge R. Gerald Trampe.

But the legal action in a 1 ½ hour hearing at the Johnson County Courthouse here did nothing to unravel the mystery of how Powell amassed a fortune in elective office.

Among Powell's assets at his death on Oct. 182, 1970, were valuable race track stocks and some $800,000 in cash, much of it found stuffed in shoeboxes and other containers at his room in the old St. Nicholas Hotel at Springfield.

It has been estimated that Powell's total salary in 36 years as a public official—his sole occupation — was less than $300,000. He served 30 in the State Legislature and for six years up to the time of his death as Secretary of State.

The settlement grew out of a 1971 suit filed by Scott alleging Powell profited by misuse of public office and urging that a "substantial portion" of his estate be returned to taxpayers.

The case was never resolved in court and the charges were never proved. Instead, Powell's executors agreed to a settlement that Scott likened to a consent decree in an antitrust case.

"They say they never did anything wrong but they pay anyway and promise never to do it again," Scott said.

The settlement included payment of $100,000 in damages to the state general revenue fund and provisions for sharing $1.5 million between the Illinois State Historical Society and the Illinois State Museum at Springfield.

Among the sites to be maintained through the settlement is Powell's two-story, white frame home on Vine Street here. The house, where Powell was born, is headquarters for the Johnson County Historical Society.

Still to be settled is a $1 million lien against the Powell estate by the Internal Revenue Service and agreement on inheritance taxes due to the state.

Halt Asked On Developing In The Nicasio Lake Area

Board members voted 4-0 to recommend to county planners and supervisors that consideration of a 31-unit housing development proposed for the watershed be postponed. Director Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. was absent.

District staff reported that the Nicasio area, mostly grassland, is more sensitive than other areas and that development could affect water quality.

Directors objected that consultants preparing the environmental impact report for the housing project had not requested information from the water district on the development's possible adverse effect on water.

The project, which would increase the population of the town of Nicasio by 60 per cent, is expected to improve water quality by "controlling animal wastes and sewage treatment," according to the impact statement.

"I don't believe that," declared Director Jack R. Felson.

In addition to 31 homes, the development includes facilities for horses and five wells for water supply. Sewage would be treated and disposed of by spray irrigation.

Directors will protest the impact statement to the office of the county environmental coordinator.

They emphasized the importance of protecting the quality of water in the 869-acre dam, which stores 50 per cent of district water supply.

Staff reported that the water district owns only 1,522 acres, including water surface, while 21,710 acres are private lands.

Directors suggested methods for controlling development, including restrictive covenants with major property owners, low density agricultural zoning and special restrictive zoning for portions of the watershed.

Water district attorney Tom Thorner recommended that dedication of certain lands as permanent open space be a requirement for approval of developments.

The water district currently is engaged in an "environmental inventory" of district-owned watershed. In addition to inventorying watershed lands, the staff will suggest how those lands might be used for recreational and other purposes.

Watershed surrounding lakes in the Mount Tamalpais area amounts to 11,750 acres, including 300 acres of water surface, according to district staff.

Directors yesterday chastised a consultant whose study on the watershed was ordered in the fall of 1972 and is still forthcoming.

Thomas Dickert of the firm of Twiss and Dickert blamed delays on printing problems. He said the study would be complete by mid-February.

Assembly Candidate Is Evicted

Albert J. Schloegel, 23-year-old Cotati resident who in December announced his candidacy for the 9th District Assembly seat of William T. Bagley, was evicted yesterday from his apartment at 8163 Olaf Street for nonpayment of two months' rent.

The Independent-Journal was told of the eviction yesterday by a coowner of the building.

Previous attempts to evict Schloegel were unsuccessful, according to representatives of the Prime Property Management Co. in Santa Rosa, managers of the apartment house. They said Schloegel's unit rented for $155 a month.

On Friday the Sonoma County Sheriff's office served Schloegel with a notice ordering him to vacate the premises.

Joyce Aisenbrey, manager of the Prime Property Co., said the firm attempted, unsuccessfully to collect the back rent through small claims court.

So Schloegel still owes the company $310 according to Mrs. Aisenbrey, who said she will call in a collection agency now.

"It's a shame we have to pay to get him out," she said. "We decided to tell the paper about it because we thought people ought to know what kind of a person he is since he's running for office."

Schloegel could not be reached for comment. A telephone company official said his line was disconnected yesterday for an unspecified reason. He left a Belvedere address with the apartment manager but could not be reached there.

Water Board To Buy Smaller Cars, Trucks

A switch to smaller cars and trucks for some Marin Municipal Water District employees was urged yesterday by district directors.

They recommended that five mini trucks be purchased this year to replace half-ton pickup trucks used by meter readers and members of the business office staff.

The smaller vehicles, which would log 15 to 18 miles per gallon of gasoline, each would cost about $400 less to buy than a standard pickup, with an estimated cost of $3,000 each.

A district survey of department heads revealed that 30 of the district's 131 vehicles could be replaced by smaller models over the next few years.

Richard W. Rogers of the district staff said only American-built cars and trucks were considered for purchase because public sentiment appears to favor buying American, although foreign models report greater mileage per gallon of gas.

Director Dr. Ronald T. Stafford favored smaller cars for a great many district employees, including the general manager.

Although colleague John M. MacPhail said smaller vehicles would tarnish the prestige associated with administrative and supervisorial positions, Stafford maintained that he is "an egalitarian. The general manager should set the tone," he said.

Skylab Shot Turns Up Copper Lode

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — An apparent copper deposit "probably large enough to pay for the Skylab program" has been discovered by Skylab cameras, according to Navy astronaut Robert Crippen.

He told the 100th anniversary meeting of the San Digo Society of Natural History Monday night that the deposit is in eastern Nevada near Ely.

Photos from the Skylab showed a light-colored patch in the center of an area covered with dark volcanic rock. Crippen said an investigation indicates the deposit may be worth about $10 billion. The Skylab program has cost the nation $2 billion.

He said the thickness of the volcanic rock had discouraged mineral exploration in the area, but the photo indicates erosion has exposed beds of mineralized limestone.

Vandals Ransack San Anselmo Home

Vandals ransacked the San Anselmo home of a San Francisco realtor yesterday, according to local police.

Police said someone broke into the Lea W. Rasmussen home at 51 Forbes Avenue and rampaged through the house, slashing beds and chairs, tossing drawers and goods about, smashing windows and mirrors, and painting vulgar slogans on the walls. Police said they had no estimate of damages.

BROWNBAGGING BY THE BAY

Lunchers and lovers take advantage of springtime weather yesterday at Princess Park in Sausalito. The tiny waterfront park has been deserted during almost constant rain and cold during the past few months, but fair skies lighted by radiant sun lured these Sausalito residents and others to the outdoors for a little bone-warming and spirit-lifting.

Hard Look Promised At Permits

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Army Corps of Engineers announced today that requests for permits to construct piers, docks and pilings, or to dredge in navigable waters will undergo "far tougher scrutiny in the future."

Col. Frederick G. Rockwell Jr., Sacramento district corps engineer, said his office "was increasing the tempo of its surveillance and enforcement program."

"At the current rate of development around the country more and more encroachment on navigable waterways is taking place," Rockwell said.

"This is frequently done for the benefit of a few at the expense of the majority. We're stepping up our program substantially including the use of aerial surveillance, to seek out violators," he added.

The corps administers permit programs under the River and Harbor Act of 1899 and the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972.

Agreement Said Near On Plan To Give Reagan Energy Power

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration has all but reached agreement with legislative negotiators over a modified plan giving Gov. Ronald Reagan czar-like powers to deal with California's energy troubles, both sides say.

At the same time, an influential Assembly Democrat said such emergency legislation might not be needed this year after all.

Assemblyman Charles Warren, chairman of the subcommittee on state energy policy, said recent encouraging news about conservation efforts coupled with talk of Arab nations lifting their oil embargo could mean the legislation is unnecessary.

Warren announced yesterday he was shelving his version of the bill (AB2677) but would support Senate passage of a similar measure (SB1479) by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, to provide a "vehicle" for action if the energy crisis fails to improve.

Alquist's bill was amended Tuesday, at the request of Reagan's staff, to give the sweeping powers for controlling energy use to the governor himself, instead of his resources secretary as originally proposed.

Aides to Reagan and Alquist said further agreement had been reached to provide legislative review over some of the governor's energy-related actions, thus diluting the czar-type authority.

"We think it's important and they think it's important that the legislature give its input," said Donald G. Livingston, a senior Reagan assistant.

Overall, Livingston said, agreement has been "almost achieved."

The proposal to grant one person such sweeping power was designed as a temporary, one-year step to guide California through the immediate energy dilemma. It would expire July 1, 1975.

Under the plan, the governor could lower speed limits, curtail business hours, allocate fuel and take other measures to meet energy shortages. The bill also calls for periodic reports from the state's energy users and producers on supply and demand.

"I think maybe we can get by this year without any emergency legislation," Warren told a meeting of 23 environmental and public interest groups, gathered to discuss energy problems.

He cited three reasons for the statement: News of an 18 per cent energy savings in Los Angeles because of local controls and cut backs, new Public Utilities Commission regulations on energy consumption and optimistic talk of an end to the oil embargo.

The Los Angeles lawmaker added, however, he felt some type of bill must be kept alive in case the energy crisis worsens. Under legislative rules, a 1973 bill must pass one house by the end of this month or it automatically dies.

By Warren putting aside his own bill, he will move into a key position to influence the final outcome of Alquist's version if it reaches the Assembly.

Three Forts Are Added To Historic Places List

A Mill Valley architect's efforts to preserve the historic values of Fort Baker are more successful than he had hoped for.

Roger T. Panek reported yesterday that the U.S. Department of the Interior has placed Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite on the National Register of Historic Places. The decision was reported to Congressman William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, Panek said.

Panek originally had asked only that Murray Circle, the heart of Fort Baker, be included in the registry. "The department's action goes far beyond that nomination," he said.

Inclusion of the forts in the National Register makes them eligible for more financial aid for restoration, Panek explained. All of the forts are in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The three forts are parts of the former Lime Point Military reservation, created by President Millard Fillmore in 1850 to defend the Golden Gate and San Francisco Bay against military invasion. No actual fortifications were built until after the Civil War. In the late 19th Century and early years of the 20th Century the forts turned the Marin Headlands hillsides into a western Gibraltar, bristling with huge cannon. During and after World War II, the forts were converted to antiaircraft weapons bases, first with guns and later with Nike missiles.

Plan's Second Draft Is Little Changed

When the initial draft of the proposed San Rafael General Plan brought outcry from both the public and the city's own staff last November, we were assured that we needn't worry because it was only an initial draft.

It was just a working paper, explained members of the city council and of the Citizens Advisory Committee on the General Plan. Wait for the preliminary plan, they advised — that's the one on which public hearings will be held.

WELL, WE NOW have the preliminary plan. And it is so little changed from the initial plan that it looks like a waste of money to have printed it all over again.

The new version leaves out a few specifics of the earlier one: The design for a proposed "transportation hub" and "people movers" in the middle of the downtown redevelopment area; identification of specific neighborhoods ("hamlets" in the jargon of planning consultant Warren W. Jones) in its discussion of mix of housing types. But it is, essentially, the same plan.

It still would do away with single-family and duplex zoning, leaving each proposed residential building project to "stand on its own feet." To "preserve neighborhoods," it would set up neighborhood councils to draw up plans of how much low-income housing each neighborhood could absorb and to pass on proposals for building. Their decisions would replace zoning ordinances.

IT IS, IN FACT, not a land use plan at all, but a proposal for changing San Rafael sociologically. Consultant Jones said as much in a letter accompanying the submission to the city council, in these words:

"It is no little task for a growing city in a sophisticated county like Marin to set a new direction for itself, to reflect and mold a new kind of public opinion, and to substantially modify the processes of planning, development control, and environmental management. But this is the essence of this document and of the kind of planning we recommend be permitted to emerge and mature in San Rafael."

Moreover, explained Jones in the letter, it is "the first step in a four-step, four-year comprehensive general planning process leading to preparation of the Comprehensive Plan." (His capitalization.)

Like its "initial plan" predecessor, it contains no prediction whatever of costs or economic impact — which both Mayor C. Paul Bettini and the city staff declared are necessary in any plan before it can be adopted. That was not part of the contract, said Jones's letter. And then, Jones added a remarkable statement:

"THIS PROPOSED general plan . . . refers to and relies upon the economic forecasts of the Marin Countywide Plan."

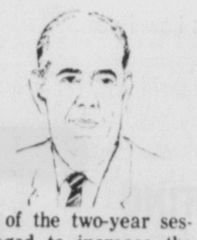

But the county general plan — the so-called "countywide plan" — was adopted by the board of supervisors last year without any economic impact analysis. The county then hired Baxter, McDonald and Smart of San Francisco to make such an analysis, for $80,000. But none has yet been produced. Instead, the consultant firm has been given an extension until April to come up with it.

So the proposed San Rafael plan depends on economic forecasts of a plan which contains no economic forecasts.

It appears to us that the city, and its taxpayers, may be getting film-flammed.

Your Legislator Costs Quarter-Million A Year

By EARL G. WATERS

Can you believe it costs the people of each legislative district in this state nearly a quarter million dollars a year to have their own representative? Is it worth it?

The fact is that the amount budgeted for the 1974 Legislature is $50 million. Divided into 120 members it comes to about $420,000 per member. Actually, the members only get about a tenth of that, figuring salary and fringe benefits. The salary is just under $20,000 but then there is a $30 a day, rain or shine, session or no session, living allowance, free automobile and free gasoline, , and generous health insurance and retirement benefits, all of which bring the direct compensation to around $40,000.

IF YOU GO BACK to 1967, the annual legislative budget was less than $18 million, or a third of today's cost. Go back another 20 years and it was only a tenth of the 1967 figure.

But you don't have to go back that far to get the idea that maybe it isn't all that necessary to spend $50 million a year to get new laws.

In fact, in 1972 the annual budget was less than $39 million. That was the year that Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, was campaigning for passage of a constitutional amendment changing the annual meetings into a two-year meeting. He told the people of California this change would result in "reforms in operation, greater efficiency" and savings of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In the first year of the two-year session, Moretti managed to increase the budget from $39 million to $50 million. And, while the second year figure remains the same, there is no surety that it won't be increased before the year is out.

Some savings! Some efficiency! Some reform!

SINCE THE LAWMAKERS get only a small part of the $240 million in compensation, where does all the rest go? The answer is found in the tremendous expansion of staff employed by the legislators to assist them. The payroll exceeds 1,700 employees, some of whom are paid more than the legislators themselves.

In addition to secretaries, each member has an "aide," a "field representative," and numerous other persons, some of whom perform only factotum services. This proliferation of staff has come about since the advent of the "professional legislator". A few years ago when the legislature was composed of "citizen-legislators" the members didn't even have a year-around secretary, let alone aides and field reps.

Perhaps there is some need for employing staff to help in legislative work, but the use of personnel paid with public funds to engage in partisan or any political campaigning is an inexcusable breach of public trust.

Worse, the practice of using public funds in behalf of partisanship is officially condoned by both political parties. Each house has a majority and minority caucus. Their staffs, paid with tax dollars, engage in pursuits which are properly the function of the Republican and Democratic state central committees.

Probably the worst offender of all is Speaker Bob Moretti, the crusader for reform, efficiency and savings, who has expanded his staff for what can only be concluded to be an effort to campaign for the governorship at the taxpayers' expense.

Ruled By Monopolies, We Become Commodities

It's occurred to me, just recently, that we are governed by monopolies!

There's the P. G. & E.; if you don't have the money, no electricity.

IRS, if you can't make your taxes they're on your tail, and before you know it, you're in jail.

Cable TV, a great channel variety, if your payments are overdue you're back to just two.

Gas stations, more and more dough, for without the gas, you just don't go.

Hospitals, outlandish fees per day; there's always the county hospital, if you can't pay.

Banks, great when you're on time, but get behind and your credit is not worth a dime.

But the biggest monopoly of them all sits in the White House hallowed hall. He has the power to increase it more, for he's not the president of the poor.

It's gotten to be quite a joke, for they wouldn't be where they are if it wasn't for us folks.

But now we're not humans, we're commodities, and frankly my friends, that scares the hell out of me!

'Dog Of The Week' Promotion Proposed

It has been with some concern that I have read in recent issues of the I-J of the plight of unwanted animals in the Marin area. I hope you will not feel it is presumptuous of a newcomer to Marin to offer a suggestion, borrowed from the city from which I recently came — Chicago.

For a number of years now, the Chicago Tribune, in its Monday morning edition (which is on the street late Sunday night), publishes what is usually an enchanting picture of what they call the 'Dog of the Week,' providing a few facts about its history. It is available for adoption at 10 a.m. Monday at the Anti-Cruelty Society. Frequently, if it is a popular breed, people line up as early as 5 or 6 a.m. On Tuesday morning they publish a picture of the dog with its new owner.

The whole point, of course, is that while only one person gets the "Dog of the Week," the others remain to select another dog from the kennel. . .

I realize the population in and around Chicago is considerably greater than here, but I thought you might be able to tailor a program suited to this area. I hope you will consider it. . .

Disappearance Of 18½ Miles Of Canal Stalls Mideast Pact

WASHINGTON — The Middle East settlement hit a snag this week when it was discovered that 18½ miles of the Suez Canal were missing. Israelis who had custody of the canal could not explain what happened to the 18½ miles, but they did ask that the public withhold judgment until all the facts were in.

The U.N. special prosecutor's office is investigating the incident, the most serious to be revealed since the break-in of the waterway in 1967.

Experts who have been studying the canal insist the disappearance of the 18½ miles could not be an accident.

REMINDED BY THE U.N. special prosecutor that the Israelis promised to turn over the entire canal for inspection, Avram Ben Igon, Moshe Dayan's personal lawyer, told the United Nations he had no idea what had happened to the 18½ miles. "It had been in a safe and guarded by our secret service for six years. Only four or five people had access to it."

Asked who they were, the lawyer replied, "Moshe Dayan, Gen. Bar Kochba, the Suez Canal custodian and Rose Mary Eban, Dayan's personal secretary."

Miss Eban testified she may have accidentally erased five miles of the canal with her foot when she was making a telephone call, but she couldn't explain what happened to the rest of it. She said she had worked on the canal at Mr. Dayan's request the week end before negotiations between Egypt and Israel began.

She testified: "The canal was in very bad shape and I had a very difficult time with it. After I made the telephone call and went back to measuring the canal I realized it was short, and I immediately went to report it to Mr. Dayan.He didn't seem too worried and he told me, 'Don't worry, Rose Mary, the canal isn't important to peace negotiations.' "

U.N. OBSERVERS, however, have maintained that the 18½ miles were indeed essential and the disappearance of them might have an effect on the Arab oil embargo.

Gen. Bar Kochba testified that only he and Dayan and Rose Mary had a combination to the safe where the canal was kept. "I believe some sinister force may have gotten into the safe and stolen the 18½ miles. I remember giving Rose Mary the canal that week end, but to the best of my recollection it was all there."

The missing portion of the canal is from Qantara to Ismalia, and Egyptian engineers maintain they will be unable to reopen the waterway until it is found.

The U.N. special prosecutor's office has tried to question Mr. Dayan on his role in the affair but he claimed executive privilege. His press spokesman, Ronald Allon, says that Dayan knows nothing about the missing 18½ miles. "He had nothing to do with it, and he has ordered a full investigation to find out what happened. It's obvious that radical groups are trying to impeach Dayan over this minor incident. Mr. Dayan is sure that no one on his staff would have erased any portion of the canal to protect him from prosecution."

THE GAP IN THE SUEZ Canal has caused great consternation in Cairo, Jerusalem and Washington, D.C. If it doesn't turn up in the next few days, Henry Kissinger may have to fly back to Kilometer 101 and start all over again.

U.N. observers refused to place guilt on any of the parties involved, but yesterday Moshe Dayan's aides told Rose Mary Eban, "I think you had better get a lawyer."

Putting Watergate Behind Us Does Not Justify New Cover-Up

Having traveled around the country a little lately, I am well aware of how weary the American people are of what is called Watergate. Sometimes they are bored. Often they are frustrated because they don't know what to do about the situation. Instinctively, they do not like baiting the President of the United States. They shrink from sensation.

But just as the publicity tends to die down, something new seems always to happen that cannot be ignored. So it was with the panel of experts' testimony on the tampered tapes and its sequels. This was no piece of investigative reporting. The news media did not cook up the story.

A former White House official, a thoroughly responsible man still holding a high post, testified that conversations in the executive offices were taped; the district court and the Senate committee felt they needed access to the tapes to tell who was lying; White House officials themselves admitted there was a serious gap in what seemed to be the most significant tape; then a committee of experts, partially nominated by the White House, officially testified in court that there had been some kind of tampering.

SUCH NEWS CANNOT be ignored or dismissed. And so the dreary process of the Watergate investigation protracts and there is nothing the news media can do to relieve the public mood. Many of us, too, would like to put the focus on other things. There are great issues, at home and abroad, which merit careful coverage and analysis.

But Watergate is not finished, cannot be finished by wishing it away.

Soon there will be news nobody can ignore from Leon Jaworski, the special prosecutor. Before long the Ervin Committee, in the hands of two very able and disinterested counsel, will create news.

So, folks, we are in for it. None of us, newspeople or citizens, can turn our backs on the facts. Indeed, we need to know more than has yet been unearthed. Who tampered with the tapes? What is the truth about the alleged spying on Henry Kissinger's activities in the White House by some individuals in the Pentagon? There is still analysis to come from the Internal Revenue Service on the president's income tax returns.

THE NEWS MEDIA will not be popular when they cover all this legitimate news. They will be accused of creating or distorting the situation. But our duty is clear. We must cover what happens, dig for whatever of important relevance we can find, and analyze it carefully and honestly. One of the criticisms of the media most often advanced by the Nixon loyalists is that we didn't do as good a job of digging as we should have done in the administrations of Lyndon Johnson or John Kennedy, or in the tragic personal experience of Edward Kennedy.

We could have done more. Indeed, I am sure that it would have been useful to explore the private finances of President Johnson, although apparently his fortunes were largely built up while he was still in the Senate. There might have been harder digging into Chappaquiddick, although plenty of news people tried very hard to get at additional facts and did not succeed. If there was a cover-up there, it worked.

A more searching probe of the 1960 voting, especially in Illinois and Texas, would have been beneficial. Part of this probing was turned off by Richard Nixon himself when he asked an investigative reporter to go no further because he believed the upset of an American presidential election would do the nation great harm.

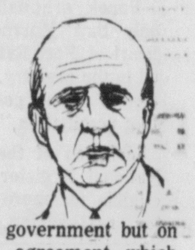

BUT IF OUR CRITICS accuse us of not digging hard enough in or into the remote past, it hardly justifies saying we should not dig today.

When Vice President Ford and many others urged us to get Watergate over quickly, they arouse much sympathy all around. But they should not justify a slipshod job, an overhasty drawing of conclusions. Even the investigation of impeachment issues should not be done so speedily as to preclude necessary care.

It will be a great day when Watergate is behind us. But this can only happen when everything important is known and evaluated.

U.S.-Soviet Detente Remains Sole Constant Among Changes

Steady if slow progress toward settlement in the Middle East testifies to the effective survival of the most important single element of stability in this very changeable world.

It shows that Washington and Moscow are determined to dampen down the one conflict which could drag them into a nuclear war. Detente is losing its meaning in terms of trade and technical cooperation, but it retains its meaning as a mutual recognition that nuclear war is the ultimate madness which must at all costs be avoided.

The operation of this element is to be seen in the way United States Sec. of State Henry Kissinger was shuttling back and forth between Aswan and Tel Aviv, whittling away day by day at the differences between Israelis and Egyptians over the terms for disengagement of their military forces.

MR. KISSINGER was acting overtly only as the representative of the United States, yet in fact he was fulfilling a larger role.

The results of his work are being published simultaneously not only in Cairo, Tel Aviv and Washington, but also in Moscow. Mr. Kissinger is acting not just on behalf of his own government but on behalf also of that agreement which exists between Moscow and Washington. He is the agent of Moscow, as well as of Washington, in the special sense of the special agreement between them that nuclear war must be avoided.

Mr. Kissinger could not have hoped to reconcile Egyptian and Israeli positions had he been speaking only on behalf of the United States. His credentials had to come from both of the power capitals for him to be able to extract first from one side and then the other the step-by-step concessions which had to precede the actual disengagement of their forces.

So we know from the fact of progess in the Middle East that the detente does retain its own most vital and important meaning. It is conceivable that little else may survive from all the talk about a new era in Soviet-American relations. But all the rest could go with no vast damage, or danger, provided this one element is stable. So far, it does stand out as the solid and continuing element of stability in a world which in most other respects would today be almost unrecognizable to a traveller who took off a mere five years ago for some other planet and had just returned.

FOR EXAMPLE, Japan's Prime Minister Tanaka arrived in Indonesia to be greeted by rioting students. Perhaps he was in part prepared because the same thing had already happened to him in Thailand, yet Mr. Tanaka has been surprised, as were most outside observers, by the discovery of just how unpopular Japan has become around the fringes of Asia where Japanese goods and ingenuity have been building a huge and flourishing economic empire.

Japan's rise to the economic first rank was one of the most prominent features of the world of the '60s. But there is a day of reckoning. The great upward surge was done with disregard for a disastrous environment and, as we have just learned, insufficient regard for the sensibilities of Japan's trading partners in Asia. Obviously, there will have to be a pause for rethinking and reorganizing Japan's economic politics. The rate of advance may well slow substantially.

Change is everywhere these days. In the '50s and '60s the main elements of stability were the NATO alliance between the United States and Western Europe and the treaty between the United States and Japan. Today the NATO association is passing through a series of changes. It survives in outline, but its quality is visibly different. It was an association of lesser powers grouped under the protective umbrella of American super power.

What will be its shape 10 or even five years from now? One cannot be sure of the answer. Perhaps it will involve a new and equal partnership between a unified Western Europe and the United States. Perhaps there will also be a new contract between Washington and Tokyo. But it is equally possible that Japan will increasingly find new answers to its economic and foreign policy problems in association with Peking rather than with Washington.

The world of the '50s and '60s in flowing into new forms. But the Washington-Mowcow agreement to avoid mutual nuclear destruction is working to bring Israel and Egypt to a settlement.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Jan. 24, 1964

John A. La Chappelle, serving a one-to-15 year San Quentin Prison sentence for burglary, was awarded a Carnegie Commission hero's medal for saving four children from a 1961 fire in Alameda County.

Marin Junior College District trustees voted to set up a marine biology station in Bolinas, making College of Marin the first two-year college in California with such a facility.

Car Burglars Find The Pickings Easy In Some Marin County Areas

The man he works from sun to sun, but the car burglar, it seems in Marin, his work is never done.

Oh, there are slack seasons and not-so-slack, but in all it's pretty steady work — and not too hard, either, thanks to his victims.

All it takes is a big screwdriver, like the kind used to dismantle missile silos, and a little free time to cruise Marin's tourist spots.

Then it's stick the screwdriver into a car's triangle-shaped wind wing, pry, and open the door. Or work a bent coat hanger past the rubber weatherstripping, grab the lock button and lift.

Sheriff's department figures show most of the car burglars hit autos parked in a few places — Vista Point, Mount Tamalpais, Muir Woods, Point Reyes Seashore and Samuel P. Taylor State Park.

During the winter such burglaries average seven or eight per month, but in summer they soar into the 20s and even 30s.

MUCH OF THE LOSS is unnecessary, says Capt. Harvey Teague of the sheriff's department.

"Don't take anything of value with you, or if you must, lock it in the trunk," he advises. But if the trunk can be opened from inside the passenger compartment, don't bother.

Some people naively think throwing a blanket over some valuables will hide them. But Teague says, "That's the first thing a professional thief looks for."

Unfortunately, the captain says, most car clout victims are out-of-towners who don't realize how many cars are burglarized in Marin.

But friends and relatives they visit could help by warning them to leave their valuables in their rooms.

Such a warning would have been appreciated by two Los Angeles women who visited Marin last week.

They told deputies they parked and locked their car in Samuel P. Taylor State Park and went on a two-hour hike.

While they were gone, a thief used a coat hanger to open their car and steal $750 in cash, checkbooks, credit cards, two cameras, Indian jewelry, clothing, a gold watch and chain, a sleeping bag, and, of all things, an Oriental rug.

Teague suggests signs be posted along the roads near tourist spots warning the unwary that Marin's highways, like her residential streets, are burglary-prone.

RUMOR AT THE HALL of Justice has it that Judge Henry J. Broderick of superior court hankers after an appointment to the California Supreme Court.

His handling of the San Quentin Six case was to draw the governor's attention to him. But the untimely death of the case at the hands of a visiting jurist who tossed it out of court changed that.

Even so, the quashing of the indictments is being appealed and Broderick may find the San Quentin Six right back in his lap.

Doctor Is Ecstatic About Acupuncture

VAN NUYS (UPI) — Dr. Stanley DuBrin had a good medical practice a few years ago in middle-class suburbia. A general practitioner, he was chief of staff at Van Nuys Community Hospital.

He gave all this up and went to Hong Kong.

Now he's back and the plaque outside his office reads:

"Certified Acupuncturist"

DuBrin, a good-looking, solidly built man of 45, admits he does not know why acupuncture works in easing pain for victims of arthritis and helping persons who suffer from multiple sclerosis.

"I'm not research-minded," he explains. "I just want to see the end result. If a patient has a fever and I prescribe penicillin and it works, I don't care why it works.

"I took up acupuncture because I had become bored with my conventional practice. What was I doing that any other doctor couldn't do? I could take out an appendix but hundreds of other surgeons could do it just as well. I could administer cortisone to a patient with a bad back but I had to watch for damaging side effects and many patients didn't really respond.

"Now I feel so gratified when I am able to help people. You can't imagine the dramatic situations. A man came to me deaf because of an attack of meningitis. This was nerve deafness and I could help him. After two treatments, he could hear again.

"At Christmas I got a card from a mother in Oklahoma and she told me how her son could walk again. He is suffering from multiple sclerosis but I helped him.

"What else in medicine can I do that can compare with this?"

DuBrin became curious about acupuncture when he read various accounts of cures about two years ago. In February of 1972, he made his decision, gave up his practice and went to Hong Kong

He stayed three months, studying under D. Yim Kwan Hong, a famed authority. He received his certificate from the Chinese Institute of Acupuncture.

He's been back five times to compare notes with Chinese doctors and also to pick up new equipment, mostly needles.

DuBrin is a member of the American Medical Association which has not given approval to acupuncture as a therapy or as an anesthetic. This does not bother him because he concedes it is experimental. He does decry the quacks who have invaded the field and wants to see more physicians trained in the procedure.

"I would want my acupuncturist to be a physician," he says, "for two reasons. Number one—it is important that he know the anatomical structure. For example, in treating arthritis of the hip we use rather long needles—three inches—and damage could be caused in inserting such needles if the person did not know anatomy.

"Secondly, if something does go wrong, the trained medical man can take care of the trouble."

DuBrin has observed some unlooked-for effects of acupuncture. Some of his patients lost all desire to smoke cigarettes. He discovered by a process of elimination that a needle applied to a certain point in the ear removed the craving for tobacco in some patients.

In a few cases, he says, men who were bald noted a sudden growth of hair on their heads.

"One patient laughingly told me he was going to sue me," he mused. "I was treating him for lateral sclerosis and had been placing needles at spots on his head. He said he bought a toupee for $195 and it wouldn't fit because new hair was growing on his head."

The ear is an interesting and important point of treatment, he notes. The ear, according to best acupuncture practice, is a model of an inverted human fetus with the lobs in the position of the head.

Application of a tiny needle in the ear and attachment of an electrode can indicate a troubled area in the body, he says. "A squeaky noise" is the clue, he says.

In the case of a person who wants to quit smoking, he places the tiny needle in a spot corresponding to the lung. The needle is like a very small thumb tack with a hole in the top. The needle is left in the ear for a period of two weeks. DuBrin reports 80 per cent success in helping smokers.

"One of them," he says, "now smokes three or four cigarettes a week but doesn't have the habit."

He hopes to see the day when mainland China and the United States have a free exchange of doctors to accelerate the progress of acupuncture, an ancient art dating back to the Chou Dynasty (1122 to 256 B.C.).

"We have a lot of brilliant minds and should send some of our brains over there," he says. "Both countries could profit."

The field is almost limitless, he believes and says:

"Acupuncture is probably an answer to things that we never thought were treatable. It has a dramatic future."

Tombstone's Tourist Stages Pondered As An Energy Saver

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (UPI) — With two horse drawn stage lines already in operation for tourists, there is talk here of using the stages during the energy crisis for the town's 2,500 residents.

"Our city has two stage lines already licensed to carry passengers," said Mayor Jack Hendriksen. "If the operators of the stage lines wish to go on a regular schedule to all parts of the town, I feel the city council would consider it a convenience to the citizens and approve the program."

According to Hendriksen, the town already requires the stage lines to have substantial liability insurance and compels them to take care of their own clean-up from the streets.

Residents have mixed views about whether the stage coaches would be utilized on a convenient and economical basis. Tourists currently pay $1 for a half-mile ride.

Harold Adkins, owner-operator of the Arizona Stage line, said he doesn't believe it would be a profitable venture.

"I would have to put another coach on the street with two more teams. The cost of operation would be prohibitive because of the small number of people that live in Tombstone," he said. "If it were profitable I would be the first to go along with the idea."

Edgar Sanborn, a bartender who walks to work daily, said: "I guess some of the older people would appreciate the stage service. I probably wouldn't use it, unless they could pick me up at four in the morning when I really need a ride."

RAYMOND R. BUCHIGNANI
Group's president

Hub Police Chief Heads Association

San Anselmo Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani was elected president of the Marin County Police Chief's Association last night.

Buchignani, 52, has headed San Anselmo's police force since 1959.

Buchignani replaces Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright in the post.

The association also elected Corte Madera Police Chief David L. McIntosh as secretary-treasurer.

The group, composed of police chiefs from the county's 11 cities, the sheriff and the district attorney, is responsible for coordinating efforts of all law enforcement agencies in Marin.

Bolinas PUD Vacancies Filled

Judith Weston and J. Michael Groshong were appointed to the board of the Bolinas Public Utilities District last night, filling the vacancies created when two directors resigned last week.

Mrs. Weston, 36, is co-chairman of the Bolinas Planning Group, co-chairman of the utility district's energy committee and Bolinas correspondent for the Point Reyes Light.

Groshong, 30, was runner-up in last November's election for board seats. Groshong, a San Francisco fireman, has said he hopes to cut some costs on the $1.3 sewage project planned for construction this summer.

The two are replacing former directors Marguerite K. Harris and Orville Schell, whose terms of office expire in November, 1975.

Opening of the meeting was delayed from 8 p.m. to shortly after 10 p.m., because of the absence of director Paul D. Kayfetz who was returning from a Los Angeles business trip. Board President William E. Niman said he learned Kayfetz would be late at 6:30 p.m., but decided to hold the delayed meeting and make the appointments instead of postponing it for lack of a quorum.

Winds Too Much

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A sign warning motorists of strong winds on the highway to Carson City will have to be replaced, the highway ddepartment said yesterday, because it blew down.

Joint Use Of Plant Discussed

The possibility of using the planned sewage disposal plant in Bolinas to treat the effluent from Stinson Beach septic tanks should be explored, directors of the Bolinas Public Utilities District agreed last night.

Michael D. Sanford, chairman of Stinson Beach Projects, wrote Bolinas directors that his group was attempting to find "viable alternatives" to a $2.5 million sewer project which will come up for a vote in Stinson Beach on March 5.

Sanford asked if the Bolinas system had a large enough capacity to serve as a treatment facility for pumping of the tanks.

Although some directors questioned whether the irrigation fields in the Bolinas system will be large enough to handle disposal of another community's sewage, board members agreed unanimously that they were willing to explore possibilities of a joint operation.

In other business, the board heard from Robert W. Scott Jr. that an undiscovered leak in his meter box had sent his water usage up to 2,600 cubic feet in the last billing period. With water rates now set at $1 per 100 cubic feet, Scott asked for an adjustment on his bill.

Directors, agreeing an adjustment was in order, told him to work out a compromise with board clerk, Lyman Robinson.

The board also heard from Kirker Chapman and Associates, district engineers, that the earliest date on which bids can be called for the new sewage plant will be March 11.

Project completion is set for October, but the engineers warned that a later bidding date could postpone completion until November.

Discussion of a financial report, predicting a $12,903 deficit by June was postponed until next week's meeting.

Workshop Set Tomorrow For Marin Teachers

"Humanizing Education" will be the topic of the Marin County Teachers' Annual Winter Institute to be held tomorrow at the College of Marin.

Sponsored by the county schools office, the day-long program will include a general session in the morning and smaller group meetings throughout the afternoon.

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-Santa Clara, and Aileen Hernandez, presently an urban affairs and management consultant and past national president of National Organization for Women, will be the key note speakers during the morning.

Sixteen sections on various educational topics will be held in the afternoon.

Trouble Over A Nixon Mask

Officer S. L. Coco cited Lowthian Tuesday night under a little used city ordinance prohibiting wearing a mask or disguise in public.

Lowthian said he had worn the mask at a party and was returning to his car with another couple when he was arrested.

Butchered Body Of Ex-Actress Found

St. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI) — The nearly decapitated body of Mrs. Athalia Ponsell Lindsley, a former Broadway actress, fashion model and wife of St. Augustine's ex-mayor, was found on the front steps of her home," police reported today.

"She had been cut repeatedly with a sharp instrument about the head, face, arms and hands. She had been badly butchered. Her head was almost cut off," reported Police Chief Virgil Stuart.

Screams reported by neighbors led police to the grisley scene in the historic Old Town section of the city shortly after 6 p.m. yesterday.

"She was dead when we got there," Stuart said. "One neighbor reported seeing a man walking away —not running — going around the house and disappearing."

That was the only clue police and sheriff's investigators could uncover immediately. No murder weapon was found at the scene.

Stuart described Mrs. Lindsley as "still a beautiful woman" in her 50s, a slender platinum blonde slightly taller than average.

She was at her Old Town house, one of three the couple owned in and around the city, to feed several dogs and a bird she kept there, Stuart said. Police located her husband at another of the couple's houses, and he said he had just left his wife moments before she had gone on the errand to feed the animals.

The bird was the only thing missing from the house, a medium-priced home in a quiet neighborhood, the police chief said. It was a crippled bird, "a blue jay, I think," Stuart explained.

Family Takes To Minibikes

By DOROTHY NEWELL

As spring is just around the corner, most families will be going on outings such as picnics, the beach or the mountains.

But, it's not so with the Antone G. Cincotta Jr. family of Novato. Mr. and Mrs. Cincotta and their family of five children, Antone, 14, Delphine, 12, Michael, 11, Brian, 9, and Maria, 5, will head for the Alvin Gambonini ranch with their minibikes to ride the dirt trails.

Promoting a minibike park in Marin County has become a family affair for the Cincotta family.

"We don't want the park for ourselves," Cincotta said," "as we have the Gambonini Ranch trails to ride, but we would like to get other families and their children off the asphalt."

"Kids can't be licensed, and they have no place to ride," he continued. Falling on the asphalt can injure them, but mother earth is very forgiving when falling on the dirt," Cincotta said.

MR. AND MRS. Cincotta both agreed that riding minibikes gives the youngsters a sense of responsibility, and they find out how to look out for other people, learn mechanics, what to do in an emergency, and coordination, they said.

At the Gambonini ranch the youngsters have races and usually on a Sunday members have a barbecue.

"The YMCA kids use the ranch six or seven times a year, too," says Faye Cincotta, "but they would like a minibike park closer to the urban area." There are dirt trails where families can ride, but at Sears Point, she gave as an example, it costs $3 a person a day which is prohibitive for a large family.

Mr. and Mrs. Cincotta have been working with Larry Dito of the Novato Parks and Recreation Department hoping to get a minibike park, possibly at Hamilton Air Force Base, which would also include an area for motorcycles.

"Give us a place to ride," the Cincottas agreed, "and perhaps it can be financed either by the county, city or the users of the mini-bike park."

Questioned about the noise factor, Cincotta said minibikes should make less noise than a lawn mower. Only if the muffler is removed do they make more noise, and he said if the bikes make too much noise at the Gambonini ranch they are not allowed. The minimotor bikes do not have lights, have small wheels and are not licensed.

Many of the owners of minibikes prefer to ride in mud, but the Cincotta family prefers dry trails.

The Cincottas all have minibikes, and Cincotta sometimes rides his Honda motorcycle to his California Street attorney's office in San Francisco. He says it helps the environment as there is less pollution. He added that during this energy crisis also, a motorcycle will travel 90 to 120 miles on a gallon of gas.

Mr. and Mrs. Cincotta met when Faye, an airline stewardess based in Dallas, asked to be transferred to San Francisco in 1957. Cincotta is a native San Franciscan and said his father was riding a motorcycle in 1915.

Faye rode a motorcycle in San Francisco when the family had only one car. They moved to Novato three years ago. Friends are kidding them about getting another minibike within a few years as the Cincottas are expecting their sixth child.

Volunteer Switchboard Ready To Go

Sponsored by 12 Petaluma area churches, Fish, said one of the organizers Joan Buchholz, will provide a broad spectrum of services. "Whatever the problem is, we'll find an answer," she said.

The organization, named for the early Christian symbol, she explained, will offer two-types of service to the community, one will include action of an immediate, temporary nature such as emergency transportation, food or babysitting, and the other will be of a more continuing nature such as reading to the blind or campanionship for the elderly.

Fish calls will be received by an answering service which will take the name and number of the person calling, determine the nature of the need and call one of the 24-hour dispatchers for action, said Mrs. Buchholz of the operation.

THE MORE than 70 persons already volunteered for Fish will also refer callers to the community resource needed in a particular situation.

Organizers have been compiling a reference list of service agencies in the county for the past three months, said Linda Keill, another coordinator, and hope to be "informed enough to find out where people can go."

"Petaluma has grown so fast," said Mrs. Bucholz, "that the services have not kept up. Sonoma County isn't so bad but Petaluma is. . . local help is hard to find."

"We've established a real need in Petaluma," said Mrs. Keill. "We hope we can fullfill that need."

For emergency calls, Fish will provide transportation to the Hillcrest Hospital emergency room or refer the caller to the Sonoma County Medical Society. For special problems, siad Mrs. Keill, Fish has a volunteer physician, dentist and nurse to help in a "limited capacity."

For crisis calls, such as suicide prevention, Fish will refer

Keep Your Feet In Fine Fettle

Begin with a good soaping — easy enough to do while enjoying the daily bath. Gently push cuticles back. After drying, massage nails with cuticle oil and again work softened cuticle away from the nails. Use an orange stick wrapped with cotton.

When clipping toenails, always finish by lightly filing with an emery board. Be sure nails are square as filing down the corners encourages trouble with ingrown toenails.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Pregnant At 12, She Doesn't Know Where To Look For Help

DEAR RAP:

I am 12 and I am pregnant, and a hopeless case. Don't know who is the father.

I don't have anyone to turn to because my mother is the neighborhood you-know-what and my father hits the bars every night. No one cares.

I ran around because everybody else did and mainly because I didn't want to stay home alone and think. But I have thought a lot this month and I want to reform. I'm scared. I want to start over. I don't have money for an abortion or know how to ask for one, even. Who can help me? — HOPELESS CASE

DEAR H.C.:

You'd be surprised how many people are out there waiting to help a "hopeless" 12-year-old who thinks no one cares.

If you can't confide in an understanding teacher or counselor, then call the Child and Family Welfare Agency or the Planned Parenthood Association in your town.

A legal abortion can be arranged, if you want it, but pregnancy isn't your biggest problem. You need a good foster home where you'll receive the love and consideration you've missed all these years. Let's hope, with the help of Family Welfare, you'll soon have it. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

My girlfriend had just broken up with her guy, so I asked my boyfriend to be especially nice to her. Which wasn't the smartest thing I ever did, because he kept right on being nice. In fact he told me he'd like to go out with her.

At that point I figured the best way to cool this was with my girlfriend's help. So I asked her if she'd go with him once or twice to "prove" they weren't a good match. Y'see, she told me she didn't like his type a bit. She said she'd try to turn him off, but instead — they really fell for each other.

And here I am minus one boyfriend, and not speaking to one girlfriend, all because I felt sorry for her and asked him to help out.

I wasn't madly in love with the guy so I'm not ready to kill myself or anything, but don't you think this is a double dirty trick? —NICE AND STUPID

DEAR N AND S:

Since you practically threw your ex-boyfriend at this girl, you can't really call his catching her a "dirty trick." And since the girl really fell for him (while he was just another guy to you) there's no real loss.

So. . .enjoy your freedom and, when you find a new boyfriend, don't farm him out to lonely girlfriends. — SUE

DEAR N AND S:

The moral of this tale is: Girl who shares boyfriend with chum who was dumped, ends up chum who is dumped. — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

Sue said she enjoyed having men open doors for her and other courtesies. Have you stopped to think how demeaning this is? People open doors for their inferiors —a doctor opens the door for his patient, a mother opens the door for her child, a lawyer ushers a client out —especially if he's not quite on a social level with the lawyer. And an owner opens the door for his dog. These "little courtesies" are really a way of saying, "You aren't smart enough to help yourself . . . I, the top banana, must assist you, the weak and (perhaps) stupid one. In this way, I show my strength and my dominance." — MY OWN DOOR OPENER

DEAR MODO:

You call it dominance, we call it deference. Happy doormanship. Excuse us — doorpersonship. — HELEN AND SUE

Extra Laundry Hamper Good For Children

An extra laundry hamper, reserved for the children's muddy or wet play clothes and placed conveniently in a first-floor bathroom — or wherever the children wash after a lively outdoor play session — is a saver on several counts.

It keeps these extra-grimy garments together, away from less soiled items in your regular laundry hamper, and keeps them handily in one place. It also prevents soiled — sometimes dripping — snow suits, blue jeans, shirts, sweaters, socks and jackets from leaving a trail through the house.

Bare Top Dress For Formal Wear

FLUID AND FLATTERING

New Italian Fashions May Write Finis To Pantsuits

By PEGGY POLK

ROME (UPI) — Italian high fashion designers have been trying to win women away from pants suits for several seasons and it looked today as though they may have found the way to do it.

Two days into the Rome showings designer after designer has produced suits with fluid bias-cut or roomy box-pleated skirts that are easy to move in and flattering for almost any figure.

So far the vote has been for skirts covering the knee but no more than 3 inches below it in daytime clothes. For evening lengths ranged from the knee to midcalf to midi to ankle to floor.

CAPUCCI, ITALY'S most difficult to copy couturier, used wide waistbands, softly detailed blouses and simple, short, unbelted jackets, sometimes without collars. He likes tangerine and strawberry shades but his newest look was a combination of white and stone gray.

For evening he showed demure white pique with ruffles, long silk dresses with a peasant look in their stylized flower prints, full sleeves and boat necks and a series of chiffons in lilac, coral and gold, very bare on top.

TIZIANI, WHO takes his collection next to Palm Beach, Fla., used a butterfly pattern on pale silk as his signature print. A white silk print skirt with pink and green butterflies had a powderpuff pink crocheted overblouse edged in green crocheting with a boxy double-face pink wool jacket edged in pink crocheting.

The first group of designers to show Tuesday put their daytime hemlines from just over the knee to 2 to 3 inches below. There were lots of bias-cut, box-pleated skirts with neatly tailored blouses and either long belted jackets or battlejackets just to the waist.

For evening the look was romantic — yards of floating chiffon, shoulders and backs bare or covered with more gauzy, see-through chiffon. And sometimes that was all that covered the breasts.

Clara Centinaro's young Cuban designer, Miguel Cruz, and 26-year-old Enrico Sanlorenzo of Turin offered pants suits as well as suits with skirts. The Centinaro version was a clinging silk printed in a pale tobacco color and worn with big-brimmed straw hats.

FOR EVENING Sanlorenzo showed short navy blue chiffon dressed with long blousy sleeves and see-through tops. Wide tucks offered some concealment on one dress but another made no attempt to hide the breasts.

A series of long white and off-white "ecru" linen dresses in the Centinaro collection were almost as revealing with inset of openwork hemstitching or embroidery making the bareness more peekaboo than see-through.

Balestra designed a group of long chiffon gowns in pale yellow, pink and chocolate brown decorated with beads and rhinestones in geometric and flower patterns that did little to interfere with the see-through look.

A set of six long dresses in chiffon patterns, one of tangerine and white zigzags, another of vivid green, purple and red horizontal detailed stripes, were "cymatic" prints, the designer said, or music transposed into color and form through a process developed by a Swiss scientist.

Try the towel trick — sew bright brass rings to pretty new bath towels in your favorite pattern or color, and hang them from an ordinary curtain rod. They absorb bathroom steam without wilting.

Volunteer Switchboard Will Begin In Petaluma

the callers to the Sonoma County Mental Health Service in Santa Rosa or to a local minister, said Mrs. Buchholtz.

THE PETALUMA program was organized by the Rev. Hugh Goss, minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Petaluma, and who was also instrumental in the formation of the Fish program in the Sonoma Valley.

The program in Sonoma averages 200 calls a month, mostly from the elderly, said Mrs. Buchholz, and she expects even more calls from the Petlauma area.

Most of the elderly who call, she said, just need some sort of communication with the community. Many call just to have someone to talk to. Fish, she said, will call those persons and the shut-ins every day just to keep track of them.

She also hopes that Petaluma's Fish will be an impetus to the formation of more service organizations in the area, as it was in Sonoma, where calls for employment led to the opening of a state Human Resources Development Office.

The Petaluma Fish, although not officially in operation, has received calls since December, said Mrs. Bucholz.

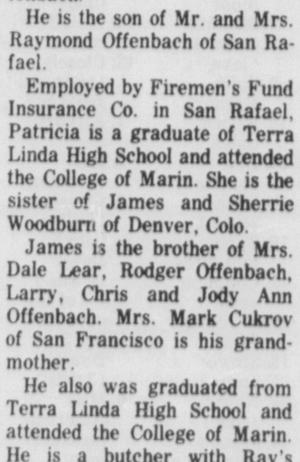

Volunteers are still needed, she said. There are no requirements, just an interest.

Are they concerned that Fish will not receive enough calls? "If Fish folded," said Mrs. Keill, "It would mean that there were no more problems to be solved."

Sticky Problem Seems Solved

One of the stickiest minor problems of mordern life appears to have been solved by a new ice tray from Treasure Ware Products of London.

The manufacturer says the advantage of the tray is that ice cannot stick to it and it cannot stick to the refrigerator.

Not Enough Use Is Being Made Of Country's School Buildings

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Around the United States there has been a decline in birthrate over the past five years which is resulting in a declining school population. While this means that some old and wornout schools can be closed, it also means in many communities that some schools are not filled to capacity.

Let's start thinking of ways to use such buildings for community activities. As long as they are being heated to accommodate children, let's make them do double duty for all.

We can put a branch wing of a museum in part of a school or a branch library. Perhaps the community meeting center could be closed and the activities which generally take place in it moved to the neighborhood schools. Daycare centers can be located in schools, allowing hundreds of apartments to have minimal heat during the day while little ones are cared for in a community facility.

Contrary to some of the suggestions being made by school administrators, that the schools be open for only part of the day, the most energy-economical thing to do is to keep schools open longer on the days they are in session. Instead of trying to make up lost school time when the weather is hot, or youngsters are needed as part of the work force, why not provide a longer school day with greater variety than now and make up the time that way?

ALSO, THESE schools might be opened to all of the community. Let mom and dad, aunt and uncle, singles and the elderly, go to school too. Start the evening program in midafternoon, and let the school-age students join in the "adult" classes.

Again, on the days school is in session, keep the already heated building open into the evening and offer gourmet cooking, basketweaving, middle-age-spread volleyball, 12 attractive ways to serve cottage cheese, handcrafts, needlework, car maintenance, classical guitar, conversational French and basic photography.

Have tutors available for those with a need; keep workshops and labs open for "extra credit," arrange for discussion groups, hold debates, practice madrigals, and be sure that at least some of the activities permit the youngest and oldest to learn and play together.

What about the churches in town? Is each one having to fire up a large furnace to heat a huge building to accommodate a small Sunday school and congregation? Perhaps several church groups would be willing to share the use of an easily heated edifice. We know of an Episcopal and Hebrew church group who use the same edifice.

Such youth groups as Girl Scouts, 4-H, might be invited to use an empty classroom at 3 or 4 in the afternoon.

The large vocational technical shops should be open not just five or six hours a day but 10-12.

American Says Term On Hashish Just Too Harsh

ANTAKYA, Turkey (AP) — For Kathryn Zenz, a skiing trip to West Germany ended in a Turkish jail on the banks of the muddy waters of the Orontes River. She says she still can't believe what happened to her.

She and two other young Americans she met in a Munich discotheque have been sentenced to life imprisonment upon their conviction of conspiracy to introduce narcotics into Turkey.

Their lawyer plans to appeal the sentence after studying the written court order, which he has still not received. The appeal must be made within seven days of the date he acknowledges receipt of the judgment.

Miss Zenz, 28, of Lancaster, Wis.; Joann Marie McDaniel, 29, of Salem, Ore.; and Robert Ernest Hubbard, 23, a native of Washington State with no present permanent address, were arrested Dec. 10, 1972, as they entered Turkey from Syria soon after dawn, driving three minibuses on hire from a Munich firm.

Hidden in the ceilings of the vehicles was 264 pounds of hashish, divided into slabs weighing a pound each, wrapped in individual plastic bags, authorities said.

Four other American girls, aged 21 to 26, were traveling with them as passengers on the trip from Beirut back to Germany. They were released on bail last August and acquitted at the trial.

Hubbard admitted his guilt and named persons in Beirut who he said had supplied the drugs. The court did not believe Miss Zenz and Miss McDaniel, who said they were totally ignorant of the well-hidden hashish, and evoked Law 403, Section 5 of the Turkish criminal code.

The sentence for all three was death, commuted to life because, in the words of Antakya assistant public prosecutor, Cahit Sar, they had been "well behaved in court."

"We thought we were going to Beirut to buy curios and leather coats to sell them in Germany," Miss Zenz said. In her testimony in court she said Hubbard had told them the prices in Beirut were too high, and they would wait until they returned to Istanbul to make their purchases.

"It just doesn't seem possible," Miss Zenz said in an interview at the jail, a converted stable which holds 200 prisoners.

"I really think it is a grave injustice," added Miss McDaniel.

"We still have no idea why we got this sentence, because we haven't seen the judges' decision. No one had given us any idea it could happen. We thought a few years at the most. I just didn't believe it."

She said they had been advised not to protest publicly against the sentence.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. Technically there is no morning star. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

American sculptor Paul Wayland Bartlett was born Jan. 24, 1865.

On this day in history:

In 1908, the first Boy Scout troop was organized in England by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, a general in the British army.

In 1965, the world mourned the death of famous English statesman Sir Winston Churchill, known as the first citizen of the Free World and leader of Britain during the darkest days of World War II.

In 1972, President Nixon sent Congress a record $246.3 billion budget and announced a current deficit of almost $39 billion

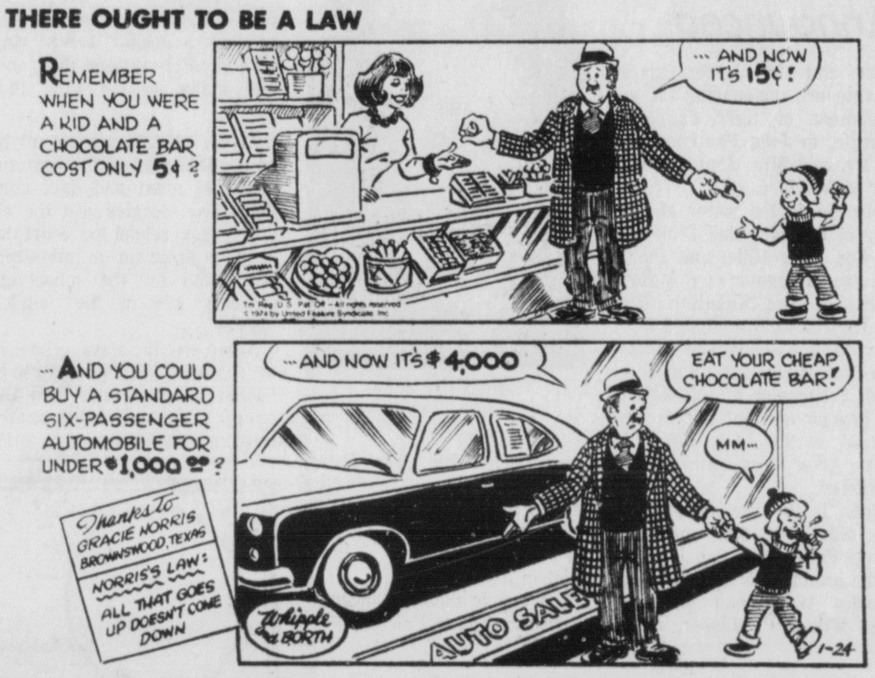

A thought for the day: Sir Winston Churchill said, "Dictators ride to and fro upon tigers they dare not dismount. And the tigers are getting hungry."

Louis Cassels, 52, UPI Religion Writer, Succumbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Louis Cassels, a senior editor and award-winning religion writer for United Press International, died last night at his home in Aiken, S.C. He was 52.

Cassels, who had a history of heart trouble, apparently suffered a coronary attack shortly after finishing dinner at his home, his wife, Charlotte said.

A veteran of 32 years service with UPI, Cassels was the author of many magazine articles and five books on religion and ethical problems in the modern day.

Cassels was born Jan. 14, 1922, in Ellentown, S.C., where his family operated a village general store. After graduation from high school, he enrolled at Duke University with an inclination to study for the ministry.

But he found himself devoting most of his time to working on the student newspaper and decided instead on newspapering as a career.

In a passage from one of his books, Cassels wrote these words: "From birth to death, we are surrounded by marvels — not least the shocking fact of our own existence — which should keep us in a state of continual awe."

EAST'S PROBLEM

West opened the jack of diamonds, dummy covered with the queen and East won with the ace. East now wondered whether his partner had led a singleton or the top of a doubleton.

In the hope of finding out, East shifted to the king of hearts. He was sure that South didn't have the ace of hearts since South would have accepted the invitation to game if he had any such side strength.

FOOLISH SIGNAL

South followed with a low heart, and West foolishly signaled with the ten of hearts. West meant to assure his partner that he had the ace of hearts, but the location of the ace was already quite clear.

East assumed that his partner's signal meant something sensible. If West had led the top of a doubleton diamond, he would want to encourage hearts in order to discourage a further diamond lead.

A LOW HEART

East therefore led a low heart to his partner's ace. That was the end of the defense. South could easily draw trumps, losing only two hearts and two diamonds.

West should, of course, play the deuce of hearts at the second trick. His low card would tell a story: Don't lead hearts again, partner!

NO GUESSING

East would then know that the opening lead had indeed been a singleton. He would return a diamond for West to ruff and would get in with the queen of hearts to lead another diamond. West would ruff again, and the contract would be defeated.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes.

Yesterday's Answer

FOR THE FUTURE — Inventor Gilbert Luna, 33, of Los Angeles stands beside a $100,000 stanlessss-teel working model of this "Luna Escalator," the world's first spiral escalator. He spent four years solving the riddle of nature's helix (spiral), once the gleam in the eyes of science fiction writers. (UPI Telephoto)

Young Inventor Solves Riddle Of The Spiral With Escalator

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — History generally looks fondly upon that breed of young, genius inventors who go without sleep, meals and life's many niceties—to be midwife to their own mechanical creations.

One modern inventor who says his destiny is to leave the world something important is 33-year-old Gilbert Luna, a hard-driving, articulate designer whose family tree is dotted with inventors and may even descend from the Aztec pyramid builders.

After four laborious years chained to the ascetic's life, and to his small Santa Fe Springs machine shop, Luna has finally solved the riddle of nature's helix, or spiral.

Once a gleam in the eyes of science fiction authors, today it's a reality—at least in the $100,000 stainless steel, working model whose thousands of tiny parts click flawlessly in place for wide-eyed visitors.

When the prototype is finally built, this futuristic people mover—looking every inch like a 21st Century sculpture—will whisk passengers up from one to five floors, twisting them smoothly around the axis like a candy cane stripe.

Four years ago Luna asked some of the nation's brightest architectural, scientific and mathematic theorists for help harnessing the mysterious helix.

But the nation's brightest came up with a blank. So, the young inventor felt compelled to fill the void. Today he has secure patents in three countries and laughs at the prospect someone might steal his discovery.

First they have to find out what the strange helix is all about, he says with a crooked grin.

Luna expects to make a million dollars, at the very least, if his prediction is accurate that spiral escalators shall become minor landmarks among the world's major cities within 15 or 20 years.

While chances are good there are sleek days ahead for the frugal, celebate inventor, he recalls it was just a few years ago when he and his chief draftsman had little more than a measely carton of oatmeal between them for a week.

"Sure, I'll know how to spend the money when it comes in—and it will—but I no longer think of it in the same insane way I did when I started working on this thing at the age of 29.

"No, this invention has been such a long, tedious process that I'm no longer starry-eyed. I lost my youth and a few girl friends, too. They told me they could compete with another woman, but not with one of my inventions," says Luna.

A spokesman for Otis Elevators—the world's biggest in that business—says his firm designed something similar to the spiral escalator at the turn of the century but it never got off the drafting table. He admires Luna.

"This guy Luna really has done something exceptional," he said. "It might take our entire staff months—maybe years—to possibly duplicate what he's done."

The inventor—who says he gets his brightest ideas listening to loud rock music before dawn—said a chance conversation with engineers for two Los Angeles skyscrapers fired him to invent his spiral escalator.

But when Cal Tech, MIT, assorted scientific libraries and construction experts said they knew little about helical (spiral) motion, "I decided I had to put my hands where my mouth was," he said.

He hopes to see the prototype built in Southern California in five years.

He hopes to parlay the escalator proceeds into a project to vaporize trash with lasers, or maybe work on an urban rapid transit idea.

It's all in the future, of course. But that's where Gilbert Luna lives.

ARGENTINE BLAST

Glass and window shutters went flying (top) Tuesday as a bomb exploded in a hotel room in Buenos Aires and police (bottom) took shelter behind an auto in the street. The violence erupted as youthful demonstrators tried to stage protests over anti-guerrilla laws to be debated in the Argentine congress today. The new laws would stiffen the penalties for kidnaping and assault.

Arraignment In Synanon Case Is Set

A former Synanon resident, who has confessed to stealing private tape recordings from the controversial commune in West Marin, will be arraigned Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas said a burglary charge was filed yesterday against 61-year-old George G. (Gil) Faucette after more than a month's review of the case.

The ex-convict admitted in a Nov. 29 deposition for a $400,000 damage suit against Synanon that he and a friend, identified as Twilver Earle, burglarized Synanon offices near Marshall last January and took at least 55 tapes.

The tapes, copies of which were subsequently made by Faucette, contain recordings of business meetings and group therapy sessions known as "Synanon games."

Faucette said he took the tapes "to expose Synanon" and discover why he had been kicked out of the commune two months earlier.

At the time of the burglary he was employed as a $500-per-month "consultant" to attorneys defending the San Francisco Examiner against a $32 million libel suit filed by Synanon.

Synanon attorneys claim Faucette was working as an "investigator" for the Examiner attorneys and stole the tapes to aid in the libel suit defense.

They say Examiner attorneys paid for a motel room for Faucette and the tape recording equipment he used to copy the tapes.

The Examiner attorneys counter that they were unaware of Faucette's activities but acknowledge being offered the tapes by Faucette and rejecting the offer.

The assistant district attorney said he filed the burglary charge against Faucette after deciding the confession probably is admissible in criminal court.

The confession is clouded by conflicting statements as to whether Faucette, prior to giving the statement, was told it couldn't be used against him.

Thomas said the court will probably rule on its admissibility during a preliminary hearing.

He said Faucette's attorney, Ronald M. Grassi, has been asked to surrender his client at the arraignment hearing tomorrow. No arrest warrant has been issued.

Thomas said his office is attempting to find Earle for questioning about his part in the burglary. Earle also is a former Synanon resident.

Students Take Peek At Nature Wonders

THE PRIZE — A student holds aloft his treasure, a pollywog gleaned from San Jose Creek in the Ignacio Wildlife Sanctuary. Students exploring the new preserve found all sorts of flora and fauna as well as litter such as beer cans and styrofoam.

By FRANK FARRARA

They looked up at the trees, searched down in the mud and let out cries of discovery — "We've got some eggs," or "Deer Tracks, hundreds of them — here's a track."

Shedding coats and sweaters on a warm afternoon, they explored the banks of San Jose Creek, a large grove of trees and a fresh water marsh off Bel Marin Keys, opposite the Marin County Humane Society's education center.

The class, led by Sylvia Waters, was the first to tour the sanctuary since it was purchased by the society to serve as an "outdoor environmental classroom and a wild animal refuge," according to education director Madelon Tormanen.

Before the students started out, Mrs. Tormanenen asked them to imagine what would happen if their homes and stores (food supply) suddenly disappeared, a parallel to wild animals losing their homes to development.

"What would happen?" she asked. "You'd die, adapt or move."

As the pupils, guided by work sheets, task cards and a map of the sanctuary, set out across the area, the hum of Highway 101 faded in the distance. All of a sudden the chirping of birds was the loudest sound around.

In the manner of detectives, they look for evidence of food consumers, a footprint, fur, feathers or feces.

They saw the nibbled leaves of trees and a scattered bunch of feathers, signs of the food chain in the animal world. They were "developing an awareness of the animal world," as Mrs. Tormanen said.

The first excitement came when several of the girls located a footprint along the creek. Using a milk carton for a mold, they carefully made a plaster of Paris imprint of it.

In the creek was a mound of debris, an old tire, beer cans, branches, pieces of lumber and cans — a living lesson that litter carelessly tossed away ends up creating ugliness somewhere.

Whenever students made a "find," they marked the spot with a piece of white fabric and later told other students about their discovery. The swamp crew, wearing high boots, netted minnows and snails from the marshes.

Two boys who had overturned a log and discovered some eggs peered at them through a magnifying glass. Another boy reported, "We found bugs on a piece of wood, 11 different kinds."

The fundamental concept behind the environmental education plan is embodied in an American Indian saying, "I am relative to all things," Mrs. Tormanen said.

"It means there is value and purpose to all things. To what depth we understand this about any particular person or animal determines how we shall treat it. That's what this plan is all about."

The sanctuary lends itself to studies at all educational levels from pre-school discovery walks to long-range, in-depth graduate studies, she said.

Teachers and youth group leaders interested in using the sanctuary as a learning center should notify the Humane Society center.

To assist teachers in becoming familiar with the area and related classroom and school ground activities, Dominican College will offer two courses starting Feb. 6 at the humane education center, she said.

SEARCH — Student Gus Carlson, 15, (left) and teacher Sylvia Waters probe in the shallow waters of a marshy area on the new wildlife preserve in Ignacio. Study tours for Marin youngsters will be a regular event at the 15-acre property, now owned by the Marin County Humane Society.

Group Comments Being Sought On Preliminary Plan For Park

A preliminary master plan for John F. McInnis Park in Santa Venetia has been completed and will be sent to community groups for comment, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission was told yesterday.

The plan envisions tennis, equestrian, swim, canoe and nature study facilities on the 440-acre site at the mouth of Gallinas Creek.

Parks director Perre W. Joske told commissioners the plan will be outlined and discussed in a series of meetings with San Rafael and Novato officials before public hearings are held by the county.

Commissioner Polly Smith urged Southern Marin communities and groups be included in the review schedule for the plan.

Some $2 million worth of recreational facilities are planned through 1980 and will be concentrated on the western portion of the site.

The eastern portion will be preserved as a bayside salt marsh and the central portion, made up primarily of flat grasslands, will be left for future use.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Senate Fails On Hospital Override

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — By a scant one-vote margin, the Senate has failed to override Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a bill requiring legislative approval to close state mental hospitals.

The failure last night preserved intact Reagan's record of never having a veto overridden. No governor's veto has been overturned in 28 years.

Republican Sen. George Deukmejian of Long Beach, arguing against the attempt, told his colleagues, "There is nothing to be gained by this override except for a headline."

But Republican Sen. W. Craig Biddle of Riverside said, "I think it is time we used this bill as an example and broke the dam. It will set the record straight for future governors and future legislators."

Five Republicans sided with all 21 Democrats to provide 26 votes in favor of the bill (AB855) by Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco. Twenty-seven votes were needed for the override, which the Assembly had already approved.

All 12 "no" votes were cast by Republicans.

The Assembly last week voted to override 59-12.

The vetoed measure would have required the state Department of Health to report to the legislature along with its budget any plans for closure of the 11 remaining state hospitals for the mentally ill and retarded.

Reagan, who plans to retire this year, rejected the legislation last September, contending the bill would violate the constitutional separation of powers between the legislative and executive branches.

The governor's administration has closed three mental hospitals in the past seven years. Reagan has said declining hospital populations and expanded community treatment program justified the controversial closures.

The administration last winter announced long-range plans to take the state out of the mental hospital business by 1982. But the proposal was abandoned in October when officials quietly served notice there were no plans to close any hospitals in the "foreseeable future."

Last winter's announcement was made despite intense parent opposition to hospital closure and mounting concern statewide over murders and other violent crimes committed by released mental patients.

In a rare event, television camera crews were permitted to film the veto override attempt. TV crews have not been allowed to film Senate floor debates in recent memory.

During the override debate, Senate Democratic leader George Moscone of San Francisco, floor manager of the bill, noted the legislature last year approved it without a single negative vote and said the measure "only reaffirms legislative authority in an area that sorely needs it."

But Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, GOP Caucus chairman, insisted the bill would "change nothing" because he said existing law and budgetary procedures already prohibit hospital closures unless the lawmakers have been notified nine months in advance.

"This is really a false issue, a false hope for those people who are concerned about it," Harmer argued. "The legislature does not administer the state. We are a lawmaking body—not an administrative body."

GAS COUNCIL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill establishing a nine-member council to make huge purchases of gasoline for state and local governments has advanced to the Assembly floor.

The measure (AB1846) by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, was approved yesterday by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee on a 11-3 vote.

To make certain that fuel is available to government agencies, the bill would create a council empowered to buy gasoline and other fuel in large group purchases.

WORKLOAD

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation aimed at reducing court workloads by consolidating California courts into a single system has moved to the Assembly floor.

The measure (ACA71) by Assemblyman Jack R. Fenton, D-Montebello, cleared the Ways and Means Committee yesterday on a 12-7 vote despite objections from the American Civil Liberties Union.

An ACLU spokesman said the measure could create chaos in the court system which would pose a threat to the treatment of defendants..

TAKES OATH

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democrat Ruben Ayala was sworn into office yesterday as the first Mexican-American member of the state Senate in recent California history.

Ayala, 50, a San Bernardino county supervisor, scored a special election upset victory last week which gave Democrats a 21-20 majority over Republicans in the Senate. It was the Democrats' first 21-vote majority since 1972.

DEPLETION

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation eliminating oil depletion tax breaks for California's major petroleum companies has reached the Assembly floor.

The measure (AB1060) by Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, cleared the Revenue and Taxation Committee yesterday on a 9-5 vote despite warnings that it may wreck the oil industry.

Burton's bill would eliminate the 22 per cent depletion allowance to oil producers grossing more than $5 m llion annually. Those making $1 million or less would still be allowed to take the full depletion allowance.

ANTILITTER

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An anti-litter bill outlawing nonreturnable beverage bottles and cans has advanced in the Assembly despite opposition from labor organizations.

The measure (AB594) by Assemblyman Julian Dixon, D-Los Angeles, was approved yesterday by the Natural Resources and Conservation Committee in a 6-1 vote and sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Remedies For Shingles, A Painful Nervous Disorder

There are many remedies for shingles. DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide), an experimental product, has given encouraging results. According to a report from England, a group of British physicians found that DMSO combined with IDU (idoxuridine) was well tolerated by 22 patients in a controlled study. In our country, IDU has the approval of the Food and Drug Administration, but only in the treatment of ocular herpes.

Corticosteroids (cortisone and ACTH) are the current favorites. These products give best results when they are used early and in full dosage. Older remedies include vitamin B, X-ray therapy, sodium iodides, antibiotics, Protamide, antihistamines, and an ethyl chloride spray.

ADDITIONAL SUGGESTIONS come from friends who have had shingles. The majority of remedies are the lotions and salves that help to dry up the eruption. As a matter of fact, any product containing alcohol, menthol, or camphor will prove soothing. However, because an internal viral infection is involved, cure is difficult to achieve.

Herpes zoster (shingles) is caused by a virus that invades a nerve or nerve root. Pain is not easy to control when nerve tissue is inflamed. Neuralgia becomes a real problem when it persists long after the outward manifestations of the disease have disappeared. Occasionally distress is so severe, the nerve must be cut. Now and then more extensive operations must be done.

There is a definite link between shingles and chicken pox. Most victims of herpes zoster have had chicken pox and seem to be immune to its causative virus. But when exposed to chicken pox, they get shingles. Occasionally the opposite is true in that children develop chicken pox when exposed to an adult with shingles.

SHINGLES SUFFERERS usually tell the same story — pain on one side over the involved nerve one to seven days before the eruption appears. During this period, patient and physician may be at a loss as to cause. Involvement of a nerve in the chest wall may resemble ordinary neuritis or pleurisy. The riddle is solved when the typical water blisters develop along the course of the nerve. When the blisters break, the contents ooze out and crusts form as the material dries. The eruption usually clears within two to four weeks.

NEUROTIC SYMPTOMS

REPLY

Anxiety, indigestion, palpitation, shortness of breath, weakness, and almost every other symptom known to man. These manifestations may simulate organic disease even though of emotional origin. A severe neurosis may be completely disabling, especially when the anxiety over the distress is marked.

HOT FLASHES

S. H. writes: What are the symptoms of hot flashes?

REPLY

A sudden sense of heat, followed by sweating, that begins in the neck and goes up to the top of the head. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on the menopause.

Arrest Made In Sausalito On Entry Try

Officers said James Michael Brown, 22, was stopped about 6 p.m. after a neighbor reported seeing a suspicious person near the Pine Street home.

Brown was carrying a knife believed taken in another burglary in the 900 block of Bridgeway earlier in the day, police said. At the Bridgeway home, someone broke a window with a rock, went inside and removed the knife, according to police.

Brown was taken to Marin County Jail and booked on suspicion of burglary. He was held in lieu of $7,500 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

San Quentin Planning Rules Laid

Preliminary development plans for San Quentin Peninsula should include large and small landowners alike, the Larkspur Planning Commission has decided.

Commissioners Tuesday recommended that all undeveloped land east of Highway 101 except the proposed ferry terminal be rezoned to a planned development district, according to John E. Roberto, city planning director. Rezoning will now be considered by the city council which last week supported it.

The ferry terminal has previously received all approvals needed and is expected to be completed in July 1975.

Toberto said land owner Alfred A. Finnila and attorneys for Victoria Station restaurants who plan to locate on Finnila's land opposed the rezoning. They objected to having to delay development plans until areawide plans can be submitted.

The Larkspur Planning Commission also:

ORDINANCE — Delayed consideration of an ordinance adding flea markets as a permitted use in commercial district until staff explores how other Marin cities treat flea markets in zoning.

PERMIT — Continued consideration of permits for single family residences on sloped land at 373 and 375 North Almenar Drive until commissioners can look at the property.

MORATORIUM — Directed the city attorney to prepare an opinion on what effect the Marin Municipal Water District's hookup ban might have on the planning consideration.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Feb. 12 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

MOST SOVIETS DON'T UNDERSTAND

Russia's Solzhenitsyn Dilemma

MOSCOW (AP) — "Papa who was Leonid Brezhnev?" a Russian boy asks his father in the 21st century.

"I think he was a politician who lived during the Solzhenitsyn era," says his father.

This anecdote is told among some Russian intellectuals. It illustrates their confidence that the name of novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn will survive far longer than those of the people currently harassing him.

In the West, too, the 1970 Nobel laureate has a large following, and his name has become a symbol of towering literary talent, of heroic struggle for freedom of expression.

But among ordinary Russians Solzhenitsyn seems subject to the lot of many prophets before him: lack of understanding and appreciation, indifference or even hostility, on the part of his own people.

With the Dec. 28 publication in Paris of Solzhenitsyn's latest book the "Gulag Archipelago," a scathing indictment of terror during the reign of Joseph Stalin, the battle lines are drawn again: "Tell me what you think of 'Archipelago' and I will tell you who you are."

Most Russians probably could not give a knowledgeable answer to what they think of the book. It is banned here, along with Solzhenitsyn's other works, and the author is denounced from party tribunes as a "hack writer," a "traitor" an "internal emigrant," a "loathsome creature.

Given their isolation and the ferocious momentum of the authorities' smear campaign, it is a safe bet that the majority of ordinary Russians would go along with the official assessment of Solzhenitsyn — or at least not question it publicly.

It is extremely difficult for an outsider to accurately gauge the Russian psyche. There are no public openion polls in the U.S.S.R., and foreigners are isolated and restricted to such a degree they can establish no real dialogue with average Soviet citizens.

But a way to get a glimpse of what's on Russians' minds is to attend one of the numerous public current events lectures sponsored all over the country by the Znaniye — Knowledge Society — a propaganda arm of the Communist party.

At such a lecture in Moscow last week, at least half the questions asked by the audience were about Solzhenitsyn and his new book, indicating a widespread, if uninformed, curiosity about the affair. They also indicated a pronounced hostility toward the author.

"Who is this Solzhenitsyn?" asked one spectator. "The son of a Rostov landowner," replied the party lecturer, "who ... was sentenced for actions during wartime that no army permits."

The implication was that Solzhenitsyn had turned and run away from battle, meriting the label of traitor. Actually, he was arrested on the front in February 1945 for making veiled, unflattering references to Stalin in letters to a friend.

ALEXANDER SOLZHENITSYN
Critical Russian author

"What has he done and where is he now?" came another question.

"He has written a vile book which is condemned by the foreign Communist press and even by sober representatives of the bourgeois class abroad," the lecturer replied.

"What will be done about him?"

The lecturer replied some people have demanded Solzhenitsyn be "completely isolated" and quoted those unnamed people as saying "don't give him Soviet bread and don't give him bread from abroad."

"In the end," he said, "I think the will of the people will be done."

If they take harsh physical steps against him — such as imprisonment or exile — there is bound to be a wave of protest from the West which could upset Soviet plans for better relations. If they do nothing, they might encourage other internal criticism.

For the time being they have resorted to vitriolic, almost hysterical attacks in the part newspapers and on television which have consisted primarily of name-calling and distortion of Solzhenitsyn's words.

Ban At Stinson Beach Relaxed

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — The ban on construction in Stinson Beach has been eased by the Regional Water Quality Control Board in order to allow two homes under the wire.

The board's ban, effective last Oct. 31, said then that property owners would be exempt if they already had county building permits for construction.

The board changed its mind on Tuesday, voting instead to allow construction of projects which already had obtained septic tank permits. These permits are issued before building permits.

The executive officer of the board, Fred H. Dierker, said only two homes would qualify under the change, which he termed "an interpretation of the action they (the board) took previously."

The homes, however, still would need permits from the North Central Coast Regional Commission, which previously backed up the regional water board by cutting off all permits for projects which did not have building permits by Oct. 31.

Michael L. Fischer, the commission's executive director, said it will be up to the commission to decide whether to make the same change made by the water board.

Intrastate Airlines Granted Fare Boost

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California Public Utilities Commission yesterday granted additional interim fare increases to five intrastate airlines to offset increased fuel costs.

The PUC granted Pacific Southwest Airlines, Air California and Golden West Air Lines interim boosts of 23 cents per passenger on Jan. 15 for increased fuel costs, but the airlines alleged that increases in these costs have amounted to at least 30 per cent. Therefore, the PUC allowed PSA higher interim increases and said the other airlines could have similar increases effective on five days' notice to the PUC and the public.

Western Air Lines and Swift Aire Lines also included in the order.

The new schedule of interim increases raises the fare from Los Angeles-Burbank to San Francisco by 47 cents, from San Diego to San Francisco by 46 cents, from San Diego to Fresno by 69 cents and from Los Angeles to Sacramento by 47 cents instead of the flat 23-cent increase granted last week.

In addition, the PUC modified minimum flight requirements for the PSA and Air California in recognition of the impact of fuel allocation reductions. The companies had asked that minimum flight requirements be suspended because of the fuel cutbacks.

However, the PUC set new minimum schedules it said appeared to offer the airlines the necessary flexibility in rescheduling their flights.

For PSA the previous requirement was four trips daily from Ontario to San Francisco. This was cut to 20 flights per week. Non-stop flights between Burbank and Sacramento were cut from two a day to five a week.

For Air California, the Santa Ana-San Francisco flight minimum of five a day was cut to 25 a week, and the Santa Ana-San Jose flights from three a day to 15 weekly.

Lip-Sync All Wrong For 'Music Country'

NEW YORK (AP) — Show No. 2 of NBC's new "Music Country U.S.A." series is on tonight. But if it's like last week's premiere show, the series should be retitled "Music Country Lip-Sync U.S.A."

The lip-sync, if you've never heard of it, is an ancient television dodge by which singers don't actually sing. They just silently mouth the words of songs — usually their latest hit — they've recorded earlier in a studio.

It's occasionally justified, though I'd say only when both new material and technical considerations make it necessary.

But doing a hit record lip-sync on what is billed as a different kind of television musical is akin to getting people to buy pumpkin farms, then cancelling Halloween. It's a flimflam.

Only Jerry Reed, the host of the first show, and singer-guitarist Johnny Russell seemed to have the honesty to pass up the safety of the lip-sync and take their chances as the videotape rolled.

True, Reed was singing to previously recorded background arrangements, but at least he wasn't relying on the smoother performances you get when you do the whole thing in a studio.

In his effort to emphasize the wide appeal of country music, executive producer Greg Garrison taped parts of the show in such un-Southern locales as Indiana, Washington, D.C., the Staten Island ferry, Hidden Valley and Big Sur, Calif., and the High Sierra.

All visually well and good, but I think he's losing a lot of the relaxed atmosphere of country music by not staying below the Mason-Dixon line, where all but one of the 15 artists on last week's show customarily record.

The exception was Wayne Newton. And he ain't country.

Even with its faults, though, the show has one king-size plus going for it! It at least airs some good, tastefully arranged songs many of us might miss if we live in areas where screamers and the Big Beat rule the airwaves.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

A motorist entering SW Columbia and SW 16th Avenue in Portland, Ore., can't tell which way to go from all the signs. On his right signs read: Dead End and One Way, while directly across the street another reads, One Way, but in the opposite direction. And if the motorist goes ahead he still can't turn right, but can park for two hours.

Year Of Tiger Makes Entrance

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Happy new year.

Old-timers view the year of the Tiger with trepidation, recalling 1914 and the start of World War I, 1938 and World War II, 1950 and Korea and 1962 and the Cuban missile crisis.

Kennedy Papers Reveal That Ike Saw Laos Intervention

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — President Dwight D. Eisenhower told John F. Kennedy the day before Kennedy's presidential inauguration that the United States might have to intervene in Laos. But little, if anything, was said about Vietnam, according to presidential papers made public by the JFK Library.

Among the 110,000 documents from Kennedy's office files is a memorandum meeting between Kennedy and Eisenhower Jan. 19, 1961.

The memo, written by Clark Clifford, said Eisenhower told Kennedy that if Laos fell into Communist hands, Thailand, Cambodia and South Vietnam might also fall.

Clifford, who served as an adviser to Kennedy during the transition period, said, "President Eisenhower stated that he considered Laos of such importance that if it reached the stage where we could not persuade others to act with us, then he would be willing 'as a last desperate hope to intervene unilaterally.'"

According to Clifford, Eisenhower also told Kennedy, "that it would be fatal to permit the Communists to have any part in a new Laotian government." He states that experience shows that any time you permit Communists to have a part in the government of such a nation, they wind up in control."

The documents also disclose: Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield urged Kennedy to limit U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia and "concentrate our principal efforts in a place like Vietnam where there is some hope for the future."

Presidential aide Theodore Sorensen told Kennedy during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis that the Soviet missiles did "not significantly alter the balance of power" but could not be tolerated "if our courage and our commitments are ever to be believed by either allies or adversaries."

Kennedy's national security adviser, McGeorge Bundy, offered to resign after the Bay of Pigs invasion.

In a lengthy memo to Kennedy in May 1961, Mansfield said, "We are, in my opinion, too far out on too many costly and shaky limbs in that region (Southeast Asia) and our basic problem is how to get down from them so that our commitments will be reasonably commensurate with our interests—to get down from them in a dignified and responsible fashion before Communist intrigue compels us either to descend in embarrassment and disorder or to climb still further out.

"As I see it," wrote Mansfield, "the only way to do it is this: To concentrate our efforts in a place like Vietnam where there is some hope for the future..."

"It is generally agreed that these missiles, even when fully operational, do not significantly alter the balance of power—i.e., they do not significantly increase the potential megatonnage capable of being unleashed on American soil...

"Nevertheless, it is generally agreed that the United States cannot tolerate the known presence of offensive nuclear weapons in a country 90 miles from our shore, if our courage and our commitments are ever to be believed by either allies or adversaries."

Bundy, now president of the Ford Foundation, sent Kennedy an undated, hand-written letter of resignation after the aborted U.S.-backed invasion of Cuba in the spring of 1961.

"You know that I wish I had served you better in the Cuban episode, and I hope you know how I admire your gallantry under fire in that case. If my departure can assist you in any way, I hope you will send me off."

Administration Failure In Interest Field Flayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has allowed and even encouraged interest rates to skyrocket to ridiculous levels, forcing most American families out of the home-buying market, Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., said today.

"Six years of unprecedented and spectacular consumer legislative accomplishment between 1962 and 1968 have been followed by six years of dismal White House foot-dragging in the consumer field since 1968," she said in remarks prepared for the opening session of the Consumer Federation of America's annual assembly.

The meeting, entitled "Consumer in Crisis," brought together representatives of 180 state and local consumer groups to which an estimated 30 million Americans belong.

"This administration has had more power to regulate interest rates than any president in history. It has not used that power," Rep. Sullivan said in her prepared remarks. "It has allowed — and in fact encouraged interest rates to go to ridiculous levels, pricing most families out of the home buying market completely and making others pay exorbitant interest rates into the far future to obtain a home or condominium."

GYMNASTICS CLUB

Girls Off To Good Start

By LEW CODDINGTON

The San Rafael Gymnastics Club is up off the floor, but coach Marcia Arevalo won't beam until there are no bars left to keep it from vaulting to a status as one of the Bay Area's best all-around clubs.

"The team is doing an unbelievable job in its first year of existence," she says, and she dreams of the day when improved facilities will lead to even better performances.

In the meantime, though, she is delighted with the cooperation given by the San Rafael City Schools and the San Rafael Recreation Department in helping her found the only Marin club affiliated with the U.S. Gymnastics Federation.

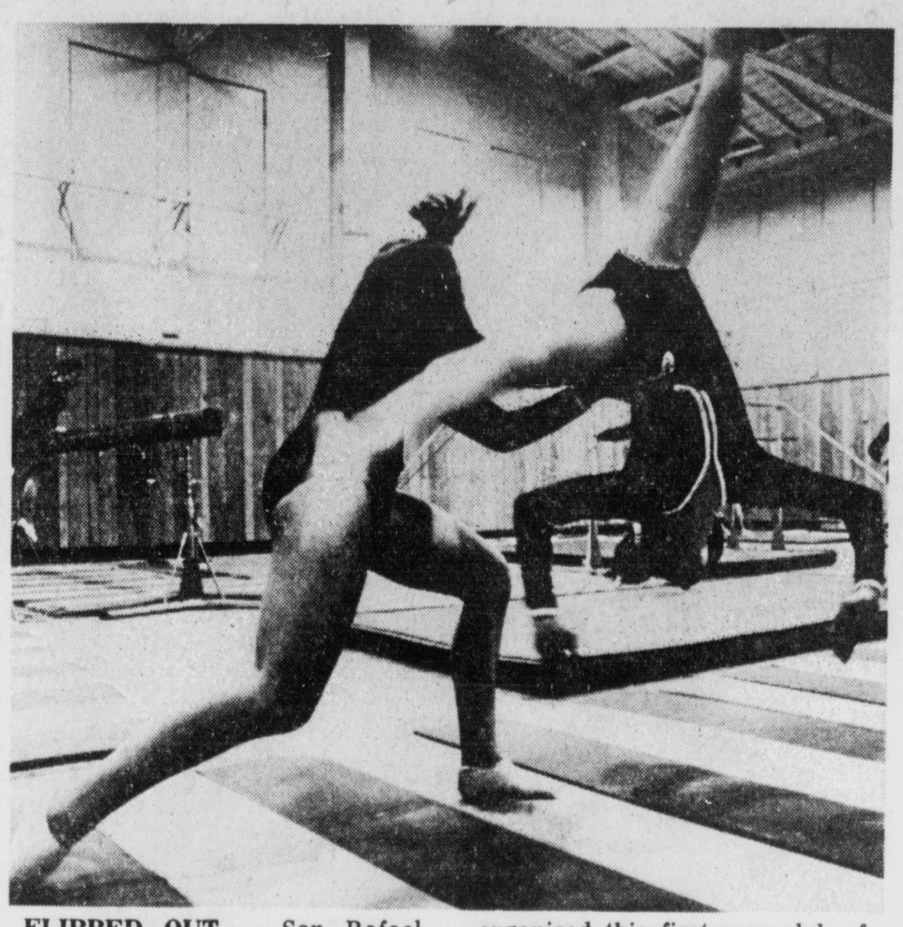

Gymnastics is an increasingly popular sport in the county, especially among teenage girls. Junior high and high school programs are strong, but until Miss Arevalo launched the San Rafael club in April, there was no club program in Marin. In gymnastics, as in swimming, clubs provide the best hope of producing top level competitors and teaching the sport to large numbers of athletes.

There are about 70 girls in the San Rafael club now, Miss Arevalo says, with 23 in the "competitive" group and about 50 in the "development" group, still learning the basics. "We have a waiting list, and would have to increase our facilities to accommodate more."

The club charges $15 a month ("probably the least expensive in Northern California") and practices three times a week at San Rafael High. The San Rafael High coach, who readily allows the club to use school facilities, is one Marcia Arevalo.

There are no age restrictions, and the girls presently in the club range from 6 to 16. Some of the best younger gymnasts from the Recreation Department program are guided into the club by the Rec Department coach, one Marcia Arevalo.

Miss Arevalo, a graduate of San Francisco State, has been coaching the sport at San Rafael High for eight years.

FLIPPED OUT — San Rafael Gymnastic Club members work on floor exercises as part of coach Marcia Arevalo's attempt to provide Marin County teenage girls with an organized gymnastics program. Miss Arevalo, who organized this first-year club affiliated with the U.S. Gymnastics Federation, has approximately 70 girls in the club. About 50 are in the "development" group and 23 in the "competitive" group.

(Photos by Alfred M. Arn)

"Marin County has needed a club for a long time," she said. "I thought of starting one when I first came, but I wasn't at the point where I could handle it time-wise."

She is assisted at the club by Sue Conrad, a potential Olympian until suffering a back injury, and by Jill Dawson, Chris Dawson and Terry Hoff.

The next competition is Saturday in the district championships in San Mateo. The club finished fifth of 11 in a zone championship earlier this month, doing extremely well for a first-year club.

Tami Wallace was the high scorer with 31.1 points in class III in the 12-14 age bracket, and other top showings were turned in by Cynthia De Nevers, Linda Harms, Michelle Pellegrina, Collette de Nevers and Tammy Whepthy.

About the only thing to dampen the club's spirits this year has been a facilities pinch. "We don't have floor exercise space or a mat," says Miss Arevalo. "The mat would cost $2,000, and there's not that much money to be had anyplace."

Until that happens, the club probably will keep practicing at San Rafael High, keep showing well in competition, and keep promoting the sport.

Not Good Idea To Call Ired Frazier 'Ignorant'

Ali Talks Way Into A Fracas

Especially Muhammad Ali.

Goaded beyond endurance by Muhammad Ali's alternate braying and quiet needling, Frazier burst from his chair at an American Broadcasting Company television network studio yesterday and got into a full-scale brawl with the man he will fight on Monday at Madison Square Garden.

This wasn't a ticket-selling act. Frazier was simply tired of being put down by Ali's fast quips.

Frazier, sitting calmly while watching the re-run of their March 1971 bout which Joe won by unanimous decision, commented after the ninth round that Ali had had to go to the hospital after the fight.

Ali countered: "I went to the hospital for 10 minutes. You went for a month. Why bring something like the hospital up? That's ignorant. It shows how dumb you are."

The word "ignorant" ignited the fury in Frazier. He leaped to his feet and shouted: "I'm tired of you calling me ignorant. Damn tired of it. Who are you calling ignorant?"

Immediately, Ali was on his feet to defend his brother. He hurled himself at Frazier, putting a headlock on the former heavyweight champ. They rolled onto the two-foot high platform, trying ineffectually to punch at each other as stagehands and handlers rushed to separate them.

"I don't want anyone calling me ignorant and I'm sick of taking his abuse—just wait until Monday night," Frazier blistered as he was led from the studio, failing to watch the final six rounds of the rerun and leaving Ali and Howard Cosell to take it from there.

Frazier whirled at the door and Ali shouted to him: "Monday night, boy, you be on time!"

"I'll be there," Frazier snapped. "Make damn sure you're there."

Eddie Futch, Frazier's trainer, said afterwards that he "took the blame" for the incident during the taping for the Wide World of Sports Show. "I didn't follow my better judgment. I knew what would happen. Despite all his assurances, Cosell didn't control the show and failed miserably. I took him at his word and he was unsuccessful."

Futch said he first refused to let Frazier appear but changed his mind after Cosell convinced him there would be no problems.

"From now on, nobody but nobody will influence my judgement." Futch said Frazier was relaxed last night and would do his ordinary training today.

The TV show followed the earlier physical exams when the two fighters were examined at different times to avoid a confrontation.

San Rafael Golfer Second In Pro-Am

SAN DIEGO — San Rafael's Kenneth Levy, playing in a foursome with Dominic Teodori, Basil Briggs and Larry Leavitt, tied for second with two others at 116 yesterday in the Pro-Am prelude to the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Farrel LaVasseur, Doug Sahm, Harry Blatt and Max Rechulski carded a 114 in the two-day, 36-hole event.

Warriors' Cazzie Raps Bench Role

OAKLAND (UPI) — Now that Clyde Lee is back at forward for the Golden State Warriors, it means that Cazzie Russell is back on the bench. Maybe that is what triggered the Warrior forward's latest blast yesterday at the team's management.

Russell said that "if I don't get a no-cut contract, I'm playing out my option. I'm tired of this. I'm through talking with these guys. I've been very quiet about this contract thing but I'm not going to be a nice guy any more."

Russell said he did not understand, "why I don't get any consideration. When Clyde Lee was out, I went out and played the best I knew how. Now Clyde is back, I'm the one who has to make the adjustment. All that and the contract business too."

In the 99-97 win over Capital Tuesday, Russell had a rare off night as he missed his seven shots.

"I get into the game and my coach (Al Attles) is yelling at me, telling me when to shoot and when not to shoot. I've been in this league long enough to know when to shoot or not. I miss my first couple of shots and I'm out of there."

Attles said he was surprised by Russell's laments since he said he talked with Russell this week "and we worked everything out."

1-For-26 Road Mark For Seals

They were outshot 33-25 and outscored 6-2 last night by the Detroit Red Wings before 10,906 fans.

Walt McKechnie got both goals to provide the lone bright spot for the Seals, who now come home to the somewhat friendlier confines of the Oakland Arena to host Philadelphia tomorrow.

McKechnie's two tallies gave him 17 for the season.

It was the fifth time in a row that the opposition had fired far more shots than the Seals. In fact, the eight-shot deficit was the closest in the department California has come during the streak.

Pierre Jarry led Detroit with a pair of goals.

ROUGH AND TUMBLE BASKETBALL

Ex-49er Blasts '73 Performance

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Football Hall of Fame running back Hugh McElhenny said yesterday that the San Francisco 49ers' performance last season made him "sick and disgusted."

McElhenny, who played for the 49ers from 1952 to 1960, leveled the blast in an exclusive interview with Roger Williams, sports editor of The San Francisco Examiner.

He did not offer any single excuse for the 49ers' last place finish but had very few good things to say about the coaching staff.

Coach Dick Nolan's biggest mistake, according to McElhenny, was giving up on John Brodie who, at quarterback, led the club to three straight division championships.

"The (Los Angeles) Rams were on their way to winning the NFC Western Division, but the 49ers still had a chance for a wild card berth at the time Nolan switched to Joe Reed," he said.

"This ploy forced Brodie to announce his retirement before he was ready and, thus, pave the way for Nolan to play Reed and Steve Spurrier, but it was a mistake on Nolan's part—a mistake that only he could be blamed for."

McElhenny, installed in the Hall of Fame in 1970 and an avid 49er follower, said Reed "didn't have it" and Spurrier "proved unbelievably inept."

McElhenny also said Nolan used his assistant coaches in the wrong places. He pointed out that Don Heinrich was used as a defensive backfield coach even though he was a great college and pro quarterback. He added Mike Giddings was a linebacker coach despite his having been an offensive guard as a player.

He also charged that Nolan used veterans who had passed their prime and other players who were not giving the game their all. This, he added, resulted in player dissension.

For a good year in the coming season, McElhenny said, San Francisco must come through with a good draft and make essential trades.

"Strong running backs are needed, but they will not fare well unless the offensive line is also improved," he said. "What was once a good line is no longer effective. It needs considerable strengthening."

An All-American at the University of Washington, McElhenny also played for the Minnesota Vikings, New York Giants and Detroit Lions.

San Jose Gymnasts Victorious

For the second straight week, girl gymnasts from San Jose Junior High School in Novato yesterday garnered the largest point totals in a county-wide compulsory gymnastics "flag meet" at Santa Venetia Middle School.

The meet, for gymnasts with no previous competitive experience, had over 70 participants who competed in floor exercise and balance beam events.

San Jose won last Wednesday in uneven parallel bars and vaulting, and was equally successful yesterday, registering 11 team points.

Kent, Mill Valley, Santa Venetia and White Hill tied for second with four points. Miller Creek and Vallecito gained three points. Davidson had two. Reedland Woods also performed.

Giants' Star Bonds Enters Guilty Plea

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — The attorney for San Francisco Giants rightfielder Bobby Bonds said yesterday that his client would plead guilty to charges of refusing to obey a policeman.

Clarence Knight made the announcement when he appeared before Municipal Judge Alan Haverty. The case was continued until Feb. 6.

Knight told reporters that Bonds definitely would be playing when the season opens "because nobody goes to jail on charges like this." His client was not present in court.

Bonds was arrested Nov. 29 in nearby Belmont when he and his brother, Robert V. Bonds, were halted by officers after a brief chase. Robert Bonds was at the wheel when police gave chase for a traffic violation.

Last month, the Giants outfielder pleaded no contest to a drunken driving charge in San Mateo County and was fined $360. The violation occurred last August.

JOHNNY DEE PRESIDENT

New Cage Loop Plans Underway

DENVER (UPI) — Johnny Dee, founder and president of the proposed World Basketball Association, says the league will find a general manager then look for owners.

"We know the cities we are considering have excellent facilities and plenty of people to support teams," Dee said. "So we want to make sure we don't make the same mistake that many new franchise operations do."

"In most operations that fail, the basic reason is the front office," Dee said. "Teams have owners who have the money to finance the club properly but they have no conception of what the sport they are dealing with is all about.

"By assuring each franchise of a knowledgeable basketball man with a tie to the community, it enhances the league's chances for success."

Dee said he would make a decision by March whether the league would begin operation for the 1974-75 season.

"Our major concern right now is economic," he said. "The national economic situation has put a crimp in our progress. We would like to begin play for the coming season but we don't feel it would be fair to our owners and the local fans to rush into something such as this league and not give it a fair chance for survival."

Dee said the entertainment dollar was the first dollar to suffer because of inflation and "with the current situation it might behoove us to consider waiting for a year before starting."

Dee said eight North American franchises were being considered from New York, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis, New Orleans, Dallas, Chicago, Los Angeles, Honolulu, Mexico City, Toronto and Montreal. He said general managers have been hired for several of the teams.

"If we plan to go ahead next season we will name a commissioner in early March and hold our collegiate draft the day after the NCAA finals," Dee said.

Padres Franchise Sale To Kroc?

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Hamburger king Ray Kroc said Wednesday night that he was "98 per cent" sure he would buy the San Diego Padres and the club would be a "very extravagant and expensive hobby."

Kroc, chairman of the board of McDonald's Hamburgers, said he would keep the club in San Diego.

He met with owner C. Arnholdt Smith and associates most of the day.

Padre President Buzzie Bavasi and a spokesman for Mayor Pete Wilson confirmed the third attempt to buy the franchise. They added a conditional sale was imminent. National League owners must approve any purchase.

Bavasi said a news conference was tentatively set for 1 p.m. PDT today.

Kroc's announcement came D.C., group that first bought the club last May said it had solved a last hurdle for acquisition—indemnification for the league and its owners in anticipation of legal battles over moving the club.

The group, headed by Joseph Danzansky, bought the franchise but failed to win approval of NL owners. Finally in December Danzansky gained the approval from the league but just a day after a Washington, was unable to meet terms for the $12 million sale.

Later, Smith, in financial trouble as a result of business deals while the head of a Southern California bank, conditionally sold the club to a Los Angeles group. But the league owners rejected this move, too.

The City of San Diego has $84 million in legal actions pending against the NL and the owners if the club is moved from the city.

Volunteer Soccer Coaches Needed

The Novato Parks and Recreation Department needs volunteer coaches as it makes plans for the second soccer season for fourth through sixth grade boys and girls.

The league will begin April 6 and run about eight weeks. Clinics will be held for players and coaches before the season starts. Further information can be obtained from the department, Sherman and DeLong avenues.

Red Birds Weak

The St. Louis Cardinals of 1973 had the weakest home run bats in the major leagues. The Red Birds hit only 75 four baggers, 10 fewer than the new York Mets.

A Busy Period For Grid Star

By LEW CODDINGTON

Football season s supposed to be over, but Ken Straw isn't getting a chance to relax.

The star linebacker from Novato High School, who was named all-Northern California by the Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation last month, has been busy coping with the attention his success has engendered.

He will spend Saturday afternoon, for example, joining 57 other honorees at the awards ceremony at 2 p.m. at San Francisco Civic Center Veterans Auditorium.

Not long ago, coach Al Scott reports, Straw was sequestered in a hotel room for two hours with Ohio State coach Woody Hayes, in San Francisco to attend the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention.

Straw also is being wooed by Stanford and California, among others. It keeps the winter from being boring.

A FACT — San Rafael's 51-46 victory Tuesday ended Drake's two-year MCAL winning streak at 13, longest in the league since Tamalpais won 13 in a row in 1971-72. The record, of course, is Redwood's epic 43-gamer which was terminated in 1971 by those same San Rafael Bulldogs.

That San Rafael team, like this year's, bolted out to a 5-0 record. The Bulldogs then slumped to 9-5 and finished third in the league — an ominous comparison not lost on current coach Bret Tovani, then the junior varsity mentor.

LIKE FATHER, ETC. — The name of Jeff Stewart has been popping up pretty often as high scorer for the Redwood freshman basketball team. Jeff had a bit of a head start, learning the game at the knee of his father Stan, the varsity coach of perennially powerful Lowell of San Francisco.

THEORY — Terra Linda's unusual starting time for home afternoon basketball games, 5:30 p.m., is the result of coach Fred Arnold's theory that teams simply don't perform well earlier in the day for psychological reasons.

"As a player, I never liked the sunshine league, and as a coach I don't either," he said. "Nor do the fans."

The Trojans' only MCAL victory this year came at 5:30 last Tuesday against Novato. They lost and played "listlessly" in a more conventional 4 p.m. game this week at San Marin.

3 Cage Teams In Key Games

Petaluma, Rancho Cotate and Casa Grande high schools are all in similar basketball league positions with 2-3 records. If any of them are to gain on the frontrunners tomorrow, it will have to come through outside help.

St. Vincent of Petaluma is just one game out of first place, but even with a victory tomorrow the Mustangs probably won't gain any ground, while Tomales must win to keep from falling even further behind.

Petaluma is in a four-way tie for fourth place in the North Bay League with Hogan (Vallejo), Montgomery (Santa Rosa) and Napa. Tomorrow at 8:30 p.m., the Trojans will visit the only team in the league with a worse record than theirs, defending champion Vallejo (1-4).

Rancho Cotate and Casa Grande are tied for fourth in the Sonoma County League with Sonoma, three games behind undefeated Analy of Sebastopol (5-0).

Tomorrow, both will be on the road for 8:30 p.m. contests, with Rancho Cotate facing Piner of Santa Rosa (1-4) and the Gauchos meeting with Sonoma.

The winner of the Casa Grande game will either move into a tie for third place, or pick up a game on Analy which plays Healdsburg (3-2) tomorrow night.

St. Vincent (1-1) is tied with Kelseyville for third place in the North Central League II behind Point Arena and Calistoga (2-0). Tomorrow at 8:30 p.m., the Mustangs host Calistoga.

The Mustangs must beat the Wildcats to keep the league race close, because Point Arena will likely triumph at Upper Lake (0-3). If it loses, St. Vincent will fall two games back.

Tomales (1-2), one and one-half games behind and in fifth place, also must win tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. against visiting Kelseyville or forfeit any championship aspirations.

Dominican Added To Church Cage League

The Dominican College men's basketball team is the new addition as the Church League has expanded from five teams to six for the upcoming season, scheduled to begin tomorrow night and run 10 consecutive Fridays through March 29.

Games will be played at Dominican at 7, 8 and 9 p.m. Other teams are Tiburon Baptist, San Rafael First Baptist, Christian Church of San Rafael, Valley Baptist Boys of San Rafael, and Valley Baptist Men.

Many Certificates

For the first time in history, the U.S. Trotting Assn. has issued more than 40,000 certificates for horses eligible to race in one year. The figure includes more than 31,000 pacers for 1973.

UCLA's Herrera Selected

NEW YORK (UPI) — Efren Herrera, UCLA's premier place kicker who figures to be chosen in next week's National Football League draft, was one of 60 players tabbed yesterday in the North American Soccer League draft.

The 5-foot-10, 185 pound, Mexican-born Herrera was the first player picked on the third round by the newly formed Los Angeles Aztecs.

Defenseman Jose Lopez, Herrera's soccer-playing teammate, had the honor of being the very first player tabbed in the draft when he also was chosen by the Aztecs.

St. Louis university, as dominant a power in college soccer as UCLA is in college basketball, had three players selected in the first round and a total of seven for the entire four round draft in which the 15 NASL clubs participated. The Billikens have won two straight NCAA soccer championships and 10 of the last 14.

Selected from St. Louis University in the first round were midfielder Bob Matteson by Dallas, forward Dan Counce by Boston and defenseman Mark Demling by San Francisco.

After Los Angeles took Lopez to open the draft, the Washington Diplomats selected goalie Kurt Kuykendall of American University. Seattle went next and took David D'Errico of Hartwick University and Dallas then selected Matteson.

San Francisco then chose Demling, Rochester followed by tabbing goalie Jim May of Brockport and Miami went for defenseman Don Reis of Pennsylvania. Miami, which got another first round pick by virtue of a trade with St. Louis, took midfielder Kip Jordan of Cornell.

Rochester, which also got two first round picks because of a trade with Toronto, selected goalie Frank Tusinski of Missouri-St.Louis, New York picked forward Rosario Composto of Long Island U. and Dallas chose goalie Alan Mayer of Madison College (Wis.).

Philadelphia, which won the championship last season, closed out the first round by selecting Tom Galati of SIU Edwardsville.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Lay Off The Brakes

By LEE TREVINO

On most level chip shots, it's unwise to put backspin on the ball. It's like trying to coast into a service station with your brakes on.

The only time you apply backspin to a flat chip shot to a green is when there's more fringe to pitch across than putting surface. A ball takes some dumb bounces off the fringe.

If there's 20 feet of fringe and only 15 feet of green, it's hard to stop short of the hole without backspin — unless it's uphill, of course.

First, consider the contour of the green. It determines which club you'll chip with. A less lofted club means the ball will be rolling on the green longer. And if it's a sloping green, that means it will curve more.

Pick a spot where you want the ball to land after you determine the speed of the green. Then use a putting stroke.

It's impossible to strike the ball consistently well using a wristy backswing. Keep the wrists straight, take the club back like a putter and meet the ball square.

Remember: If the green rolls, don't chip straight to the flag. Play the breaks and lay off the brakes.

USC Plays Seton Hall; San Jose Vanquished

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Now that the Pacific Coast's first and second best basketball teams have dropped key road tests, maybe No. 3 will try a little harder.

UCLA lost by one to Notre Dame last Saturday and Long Beach State was edged by two at Marquette Tuesday. Tonight USC, going without starting center Clint Chapman, meets Seton Hall.

Chapman is missing the trip to rest his injured knee so that he'll be ready when conference play resumes.

Other action tonight moves Nevada-Las Vegas into Nevada-Reno for a West Coast Athletic Conference test while San Diego State plays host to Northern Illinois.

In last nights major contest on the coast, University of California at Santa Barbara and San Jose State both emerged with 1-2 records in Pacific Coast Athletic Association play after the Gauchos took the Spartans 81-62.

Mark Holland scored 27 to lead Chapman past Cal Lutheran 81-70 while Paul Caldwell's 22 led Whittier past Pomona 69-66. Occidental made its record 4-0 in the SCIAC with a 98-57 win over Cal Tech.

Pro Grid Espionage Detected?

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys officials said yesterday someone in the National Football League, apparently swayed by job offers, sold the World Football League confidential NFL scouting reports which the WFL used to conduct its draft.

"It's been the history of our civilization that people can be bought," President and General Manager Tex Schramm said. "We've had a pretty good example of it in some of our highest places.

"This (the NFL scouting report) was brought from someone who had access to it," Schramm said. "Either it was an outright purchase or obtained with the promise of a position in the future. The unfortunate thing is that it might cast suspicion on anybody who had access to this information who might be moving to the WFL in the next few months."

John F. Bassett, the owner of the Toronto franchise of the WFL, said the league conducted its draft with copies of the NFL computer scouting report and another report from an NFL team director of personnel.

"It's what you call industrial espionage," Cowboy head scout Gil Brandt said. "I know where it came from. At least I was told where it came from. It's disappointing that we have people who will prostitute themselves for a few dollars. I'm sure it was either bought or received through a promise of a job or so forth."

Schramm said the person who sold the reports could be the subject of punitive action under the NFL's "conduct detrimental to the league" law.

"I have no idea what the league intends to do or what it could do," Schramm said. "I imagine it would be a matter for the principals from whom the information was obtained."

Schramm said the scouting report used by the WFL was not an actual NFL document—since the league does not conduct its own scouting—but one prepared by one of the computer companies hired to compile such reports.

SKI SCENE

Trying To Ease Energy Problem

By CHARLIE COANE

The energy crisis hasn't really hit the ski areas as expected, but many areas are doing their part to ease the hassle of driving to the hills.

Northstar, in its sophomore season as a ski area and located halfway between Truckee and Kings Beach, has come up with an interesting plan called "snowtrain" that they fondly refer to as a "romantic solution to the energy crisis." I don't know about that, but it's an interesting idea they've worked out with Amtrak. The train leaves Oakland every Sunday at 9:20 a.m., arrives in Truckee at 2:35 p.m. — where Mercedes limousines whisk skiers a short way to Northstar.

The seven day package returns to Oakland the following Sunday, and the five day trip returns Friday. The costs are $259 and $187 respectively including accommodations, rail fare, ground transportation, lift tickets, dinners at various restaurants around North Tahoe, continental breakfasts and two luncheons on the train. Lesson packages are also available.

Skiing at Northstar at present is not exactly designed to challenge Jean-Claude Killy, but the runs are long and fun, and five chairlifts provide access to the privately owned Mt. Pluto and its 2,200 vertical feet.

A few of the hangups include the fact that all skiers must first begin on an access lift that takes them to the whereabouts of the four other lifts, and 3,000 people (the daily limit) on five lifts is not the best ratio in the world. But Northstar has bigger and better plans in the works to make the area the truly "destination" year-round resort it hopes to be. Being a new development, Northstar was under the gun to preserve the environment where possible — and that they did. It seems that every tree that didn't have to come down is still there and the buildings are not just pieces of clunk.

With Northstar's limit of skiers on a given day to 3,000, the property owners have first call. They simply call and "reserve the slopes" — so to speak — and the general public is turned loose after that. Last season, there were a number of weekends and holidays where the limit was reached early and skiers arriving around 9 a.m. were out of luck. That problem has not come up very often this season.

Northstar is also very big on cross-country skiing and the Nordic program is under the direction of Sam Medford.

NASTAR happens every Thursday and Sunday and barrel stave races, under the sponsorship of Paul Masson, will happen Jan. 27, Feb. 24, March 31 and the finale April 14.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Fund Exchange Is Suggested

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife and I are in our seventies. In 1966, I invested $20,000 in National Securities Stock Fund to provide gradual growth and, in the event of my death, income for my wife. Should I continue to hold this fund, reinvesting all distributions? — J.F.

A. My suggestion would be to leave one-half your investment intact and exchange the balance for National Securities Income Fund. The exchange is executed at net asset value plus a $5 handling fee for the transaction. The Income Fund has a somewhat better performance record, particularly in declining markets, and a higher yield. At current NAV, the yield from income distributions is 6.4 per cent versus 4.8 per cent for the Stock Fund. The portfolio of the Income Series is made up primarily of preferreds and convertible securities.

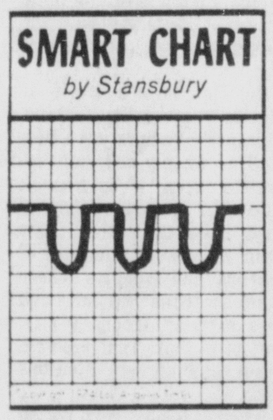

Q. I hold about 160 shares of Textron, Inc. (NYSE) for which the company contributed 50 cents for every $1 I put in. The dividend is still being paid but the stock price has dropped considerably. Would you advise holding? — F.M.

A. If your objectives are long-term appreciation with a reasonably generous dividend return, Textron would appear to fit the bill. The singularly capable management is aiming for 8 per cent sales and 10 per cent earnings growth. Financially conservative, TXT's capitalization consists of 51 per cent common stock, 30.5 per cent preferred and less than 20 per cent long-term debt.

Looking ahead, Bell Helicopter should continue to be a pacesetter. Helicopters, which are used in oil exploration, are in strong demand. In December a $45 million Army contract was received for utility helicopters. A major contract from Iran, which could reach $700 million, is being worked on. The Talon division should improve its profitability as price increases take effect and the fashion trend swings back from pant suits to dresses.

Wall Street Registers Price Drops

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell today on the New York Stock Exchange as investors found little in the news to motivate them and retreated to the sidelines. Turnover was moderate.

One particular item perplexing Wall Street was a report early in the day that Libya opposed any early end to the Arab oil embargo. There have been reports throughout the week, including one from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the embargo against the West would end soon. The market has been sensitive to the Middle East situation for months.

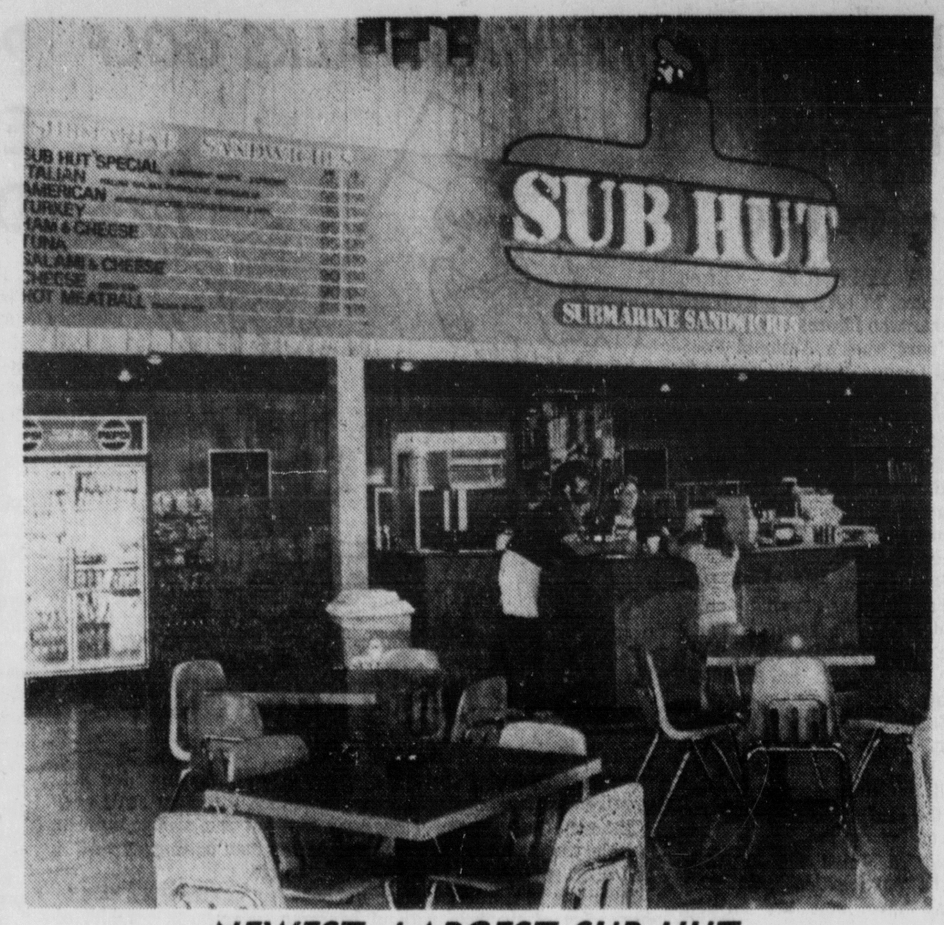

The market did not appear to have much conviction in the gain posted Wednesday. Prices began to fall toward the end of that session, an indication the gain has little basic strength. ing period Wednesday.

Motors came under attack. American Motors was the most active issue on the Big Board, off ¼ at 10 ⅝ on 179,900 shares.

Oils traded irregularly. Superior Oil gained 5 ½. Mountain Fuel Supply lost 3 ¾, Exxon 1 ⅞ and Mobil Oil 1 ⅜.

Gold mining issues advanced strongly, generally because bullion prices rose on foreign markets during the day. Dome Mines gained 3 ⅝, ASA Ltd. 3 ½, Homestake Mining 2 ⅛ and Campbell Red Lake 1 ½.

Prices were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Syntex was the most active issue, off 1 at 52 ¾ on 3,200 shares.

NEWEST, LARGEST SUB HUT

The Marin-based chain of Sub Hut restaurants, featuring eastern style submarine sandwiches, opened its newest outlet at 90 Belvedere Street, corner of Alto Street, in the Canal Area of San Rafael this week. Owners Jeffrey and Vivian Snyder are waiting on one of their first customers, little Marilee Faust, 8, of San Rafael. The new Sub Hut has seating and booths to accommodate more than 100 customers and will be the central kitchen for the Sub Hut chain. It is open until 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday, until 7 p.m. on Friday, and until 4 p.m. on Saturday. The Snyders have other Sub Huts in Northgate Industrial park, Kentfield, and in Vallejo.

'Effective Advertising' Talk Set

This question will be discussed at 7:30 p.m. today in the San Rafael City Hall by Louis F. Czufin, manager of public relations for Chevron Chemical Company. Czufin's talk, entitled "Effective Advertising For The Small Businessman", is sponsored by the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Master of ceremonies will be David Muir, chairman of the Northgate Mall Merchants group. Photography and program will be handled by Kenneth Reichard, chairman of the Downtown Merchants.

Two films will be shown, outlining the need to plan, budget and time special sales events and advertising.

Czufin, who lives in Sausalito, has lectured at the University of California, San Francisco State College, Diablo Valley College, University of Texas, and other institutions. He was a member of the United Nations Export Promotion Mission to India and has served as chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the National Agricultural Chemical Association.

Formerly a director of the San Francisco Advertising Club and president of National Agricultural Advertising and Marketing Association West, he is presently chairman of the Chemical Industry Council of Northern California. He has been with Chevron Chemical since 1948.

"The greatest weakness of the small businessman" said Czufin, "is his inability to communicate with his particular market. There's a lot of money wasted in advertising, and for the small businessman, it could mean the difference between success and failure."

WARDS TREAD WEAR GUARANTEE

PREMATURE TREAD WEAR-OUT

If a Montgomery Ward passenger tire wears down to the top of the tread wear indicators (to 2/32" tread depth) within the period of months or number of miles stated for a given quality of tire, Montgomery Ward will replace the tire for a prorated charge determined by the months or miles of use, whichever serves as basis for the guarantee.

Premature tread wear-out due to malfunction of the suspension system is excluded.

All prorated charges will be based on actual selling price in effect at the time of adjustment at the retail store to which returned or the catalog price in effect at the store or agency to which returned, in either case, including Federal Excise Tax.

*Commercial use is defined as use on any vehicle for other than family or personal use.

- Due to the importance of proper vehicle maintenance in delivering stated mileage, Montgomery Ward will rotate tires purchased at retail or catalog stores having installation facilities free of charge, every 5,000 miles. Wheel alignment and wheel balance may be checked at that time.
- Montgomery Ward will repair nail punctures free of charge for the full term of the tread wear-out guarantee.

Ethnic Program Draws Interest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Chinese students visited a class of Jewish youngsters and ate Yiddish food. Then the role of host was reversed and the featured dishes were from China.

The exchange visit was a project of the Multi-Culture Institute, an unusual San Francisco venture in ethnic studies that is starting to attract attention from educators in other parts of the nation.

And when they say ALL, they mean all—not just the usual ethnic studies course for Blacks, Mexican-Americans and Oriental children.

The institute feels that Jewish, Irish, Italian, Welsh— you name it—children also need to know and share their heritage.

"By 1976 we hope to have 10 programs going throughout the country," said Elaine K. Howard, the institute's associate director.

The institute recently opened a regional office in Seattle and is working with teachers in New York on a program for Latin-American and Puerto Rican elementary school children.

"We've had written requests for help from 75 communities that expressed interest in establishing a program," said Mrs. Howard.

Much of the interest was no doubt generated by the three-year model school the institute ran in San Francisco a few years ago.

The school had a waiting list of 325 before it closed when foundation money ran out and now the program operates during the summer.

"Most of our work now is in teacher training," said Mrs. Howard. "We show them how to put our system and concepts into practice with their own resources."

The model school here started with the more visible ethnic groups involved.

"Then the Irish and Italian parents wanted courses for their children," Mrs. Howard said.

"In the past, educational institutions used to assume that the most useful way to encourage Americanism was to ignore racial and ethnic distinctions," said Miss Sussna, the Institute's director.

"Society must help children obtain a more realistic knowledge and a healthier understanding of what racial and ethnic identities mean and what they do not mean," she contended.

Miss Sussna said the experiment at the model school "did not overemphasize the importance of ethnic identity."

"Throughout, we stressed the basic sameness of all people."

She said it was important for children to learn that "there is an overriding humanity which unites all mankind regardless of differences."

Volcano Flowed Life, Not Death, Into Town

VESTMANNAEYJAR, Westman Islands, Iceland (UPI) — One year after Helgafell volcano spewed tons of volcanic ash which covered this small fishing village, women walked babies in carriages yesterday and signs of new life were everywhere.

Whisps of smoke wafted into the air where drizzling rain fell on the hot lava carpet. But they were gentle puffs compared to the eruption that partly buried this town of 5,200 people one year ago.

The puffs represented destructive force turned into a profit. Officials plan to use the heat of the lava for cheap, clean heat and, on Sunday, the first home was connected to a hot water pipe leading from the lava. A new hospital under construction also plans to use the lava for heat.

"I am very optimistic about the future of our island. We are now planning to buy two hundred prefabricated houses from Norway for a suburban area," said Mayor Magnus Magnusson of Heimaey.

Icelanders and volunteers from abroad have removed tons of ash and pumice — 12 feet deep in spots — and 2,500 persons have returned to the spot they feared doomed a year ago.

But a more important sign of life for the islanders was the opening of two fish meal factories and three modern freezing plants.

"We have plenty of jobs for everyone," said Magnusson, elected Iceland's "Man of the Year" for his efforts to revive his island.

A memorial service was held in the Vestmannaeyjar church Tuesday night but Magnusson said that was the only public gathering planned.

Redwood Empire Panel To Keep Eye On Fuel Scene

(I-J Special Report)

SANTA ROSA — Alert to the energy crisis and its possible impact on tourism, the Redwood Empire Association has named a watchdog committee to lay plans to cope with gasoline rationing - if it comes.

President Andrew Flynn asked the group to develop uses for emergency funds in sustaining the flow of visitors so vital to the nine-county region.

Named to the subcommittee of REA's publicity and advertising committee were past Presidents Leland L. Levinger and Robert A. Trombetta, vice president J. Galen Foster and General Manager Carney J. Campion.

Their tasks will include participation in fuel and energy conferences, watching economic barometers to see how they are affected by the threat of fuel shortages, and developing programs in neighboring Northern California target areas which could continue to generate tourism despite rationing.

Flynn said REA will continue to publicize the region's attractions on a nationwide scale, and to operate visitor information centers in San Francisco (yearround0 and north of Grants Pass, Ore. (in summertime).

Flynn said the 53-year old assocation "is cautiously optimistic" over tourism prospects for 1974. Early reports indicate families are planning shorter trips but longer stays, he said.
